THE FIRST BRIGHT DREAM OF LOVE.

BY E. S. HARDING.

Beautiful is the moonlit deep,
When the waves are still,
And the winged tempest lies asleep,
Behind the shadowy hill:
But far more beautiful than this,
Or aught save Heaven above
Is one bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love.

Beautiful is the mother's tear,
O'er helpless childhood's pain,
And touch of love, fall on the ear,
Soft, as a Seraph's strain;
But far more beautiful than this,
Or aught save Heaven above,
Is that bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love

Beautiful is the bright fring'd cloud,
In summer's glorious even;
When spirit tones swell deep and loud,
From the banner'd walls of Heaven;
But far more beautiful than they
Or aught save Heaven above,
Is that bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love.

A PSALM OF LIFE.

Life that shall end
A challenge to its end,
And when it comes say welcome friend.'
What the heart of the young man said to the Pastmild.

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream—
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

Life is real—life is earnest—
And the grave is not its goal,
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
'Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destin'd end or way;
But to act, that each to morrow,
Find us farther than to day.

Art is long, and time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave,

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of Life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle—
Be a hero in the strife!

Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant—
Let the dead Past bury its dead;
Act, act in the glorious Present—
Heart within, and God o'er head!

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime
And departing, leave behind us
Footsteps on the sands of time.

Footsteps, that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwreck'd brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again.

Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

PATENT SERMON.

BY NOW, JR.

The New York Gals.

My text may be found some where in the following:

The gals are all a fleeting show,
For man's vexation given;
Their smiles of joy, their tears of wo,
Deceitful shine, deceitful flow—
There's not one true in seven.

My hearers—that the girls of New York are as fleeting are summer bowers, and that many of them as false as they are fair, is a fact well established by those who have interested themselves in the beautiful study of galology. From the cradle to ripened womanhood is the pleasantest path in the pleasure grounds of a female's existence, but she travels it only once—and that once occupies but a moment as it were upon the dial of time. To-day the buds—to morrow she blossoms—and the day after she scatters her rosy charms upon the frosty autumnal winds of age; and looks more like an old withered cabbage stump stuck in the sand, than like anything else the pencil of my fancy can portray. The girls, my friends, don't any of them last half as long in proportion, as a draft of soda-water drank from a big-bottomed tumbler. I can call them almost any thing that is fleeting. They are fascinating, evanescent flowers, that bloom the fastest in the merry May of life. If left to themselves, they may perchance continue to blossom, even to the verdure sickening September of existence; but my friends, when they are once plucked, and their stems inserted in the vase of matrimony, they soon wilt and wither like a cropped cucumber and nothing on earth can restore them to their primitive freshness and beauty. They are butterflies that flirt before the admiring gaze of man, whose spangled wings crumble into dust when they are once caught in the eager grasp of Hymen, leaving nothing to be embraced but a lump of life's common material—rough round the edges, but better within like a loaf of corn bread baked upon a shovel.

My dear friends! I say unto you that the girls are not only as fleeting as flax in the fire, but they are also all show. If any of you doubt the words of the preacher, you can go and stand on the corners of the streets that lead into the principal thoroughfare, called Broadway, of this sin sickening city, and there observe what a vast quantity of silks, satins, laces and ribbons, and other trumpery is carried about for exhibition on the backs of the femmino gender—and if you dont say the gals are all a show, I'll quit preaching, and go to planting potatoes, or peddling peaches. That they are a vexation to man, there can be no mistake. They bother, bewitch, bowsider and perplex us wherever we go. They, somehow or another, get so tangled up in the meshes of a man's affections, before he knows it, that it is hard to disengage them without tearing the heart strings in twain, and doing considerable other damages to his spider woven sensibilities. It, wasn't so with me however, when I was young. If I found a girl fastened to my desires with the adhesive glue of love, and the dictates of prudence demanded a separation, I always had hold with the firm grasp of resolution, and 'let her rip,' unmindful of the consequences: and so ought you to do my young friends when you find yourselves in a similar predicament.

My hearers—my text intimates that the girls are deceitful creatures, that their smiles of joy and tears of wo are all for effect.—Well, it is so in many instances. There are thousands of them who smile to entrap, and weep to win. Some are all smiles like the mornings of June—and all tears like the afternoons of April—regular saturated sponges, so full of the juice of affected feeling that the least squeeze will cause love's liquor to flow like milk from a perforated cocoanut. They are deceiving in their looks. How many do I see in my daily peregrinations, who appear at a little distance, like lovely angels, clothed with the attributes of humanity; but who, when brought near to, and divested of all their artificial graces, are no more to be compared to real beauty than the husk of a wild boar to the ivory of an elephant. Yes my friends, girls are as deceitful as thimble riggers; and you cannot be too cautious how you go to work to select one from the lot, to whom you intend to repose your trust, your confidence and your hopes of earthly happiness.

My friends—as to whether there is not more than one true in seven of the general run of girls, I am not fully prepared to say. I am persuaded however, that like punkin pie-noons, the average of false ones is very considerable at the least calculation.

They bud and bloom like all others, but after they have had all their honey sucked by this, that and t'other bee, they wilt away and leave no fruit behind them. But you, my young male friends, are not all true no more than the other sex. You dart about like humming birds, from flower to flower, in the summer of your lives—puke your bills into a variety of female basins; and then ere the autumn of existence approaches, you return to spend the winter of your days solitary and alone, like woodchucks that have grown fat upon the clover of indulgence. You are just as false as the girls, and they are as false as a set of artificial teeth.—But my dear friends, whether male or female you must not pay any attention to what I have said, that wears the appearance of a joke, but if you can find any thing you can construe into gospel truth, I beg you to pounce upon it like a hawk upon a June bug, and profit by it to the end that the car of life may run to its destined goal and never squeak on its axle for the want of moral grease. So mote it be.

ABANDONMENT OF PRINCIPLES.

It is with astonishment that we see a proposition gravely put forth in open day, by leading whig presses, which involves a total and flagrant desertion of all the avowed principles of the party! to wit, Coonskins, Hard Cider, Log Cabins, and the old blind pot bellied white footed Horse that Clay used to go to mill on! Upon all these first principles, the Whig party shamelessly propose to turn their backs and to adopt a new creed—the very contrary of the old. That was distinguished by every one of its articles being specially shabby and dirty—they will now have an emblem of spotless purity, and aristocratic pretension; Mr. Clay, in the belief that his time must have come now seems to have taken Falstaff's resolution, to 'purge and leave sack, and live cleanly, as a nobleman should do.' Truly the inclination shows some remains of decency—but we doubt if it will be more permanent than the 'fat Knight's.' But to the point.

In the last Baltimore American we find an article headed

'A NATIONAL EMBLEM—THE MAGNOLIA.'

It states that Mr. Hatch, of Vicksburg, gardener, lately sent as a present to Mr. Clay, certain trees of the genus Magnolia, species Makrophylla—which he accompanied with a note highly scented with the 'sweet smoke of rhetoric.' Among other things, Mr. Hatch says:

'It may not be inappropriate to add, that there is a peculiar aptitude in presenting you this tree! Like yourself it is purely American, and even in American soil, it has no prototype.

'The purity of its spotless bloom is an emblem of your reputation, and its unrivalled foliage but a type of your well earned honors.'

Mr. Clay's reply has nothing particular, except that he is very grateful, has planted the trees and they have taken. The Vicksburg Whig, delighted to find any live twig on which to hang the smallest hope for its party, remarks:

'Mr. Hatch has established the emblem of Henry Clay, which must hereafter be the American Magnolia, 'the purity of whose spotless bloom' is emblematic of his patriotism and purity of purpose, and whose 'unrivalled foliage is a type of his well earned honors.'

Mr. Hatch is felicitous in the selection of his points of resemblance—he confines himself to leaves and flowers. We are not going to say any thing against the Magnolia—it is a beautiful tree—the graceful pyramid of its foliage, the bright glitter of the leaves, and the glory of its ostentatious bloom, makes it one of the finest of ornamental trees. But it bears no fruit, that even a bird can eat—it proudly shoots upward, studding out no broad and comforting shelter for man and beast—its wood is worthless, will not do for fences, or boards, or shingles, or ships, or even walking sticks—it loses all weight in seasoning, and has no beauty or durability—it is even good for nothing as fire wood. The flower too, though so beautiful is dangerously poisonous, so much so that it cannot be safely kept in the house. The Magnolia is a tree then whose sole merit is the fine show it makes, affording little shade—its wood worthless its boughs without fruit—its blossoms poisonous. Will any tell us what sort of a politician is he whose fit emblem is the Magnolia?

MISSISSIPPI OAKS.—A correspondent of the Concordia (La) Intelligencer, thus writes of the large oaks that adorn the Mississippi coast:

'These trees growing so isolated, the sun and wind always upon them, and removed so far from any other object, are so immense in size and so vigorous in appearance, as scarcely to seem the same tree with those we see in the dense forests irregular and crooked, stinted by the shade and constrained in attitude by the encroachments of pervading pines. One of these trees on the prairies of Opelousas will shield thousands of cattle from the heats of the noon-day sun.'

And then the teeming fruit which the skipping cheerful squirrel hoards up; which fattens the herds of swine, which gathers the wild pigeons in countless thousands to its feasts! Stand beneath its mighty shelter, and see how its sturdy arms arch above, and stretch away in the solemn grandeur of an old cathedral! There is a tree for you!—But put it to the test—not a branch of it but is good for something—and bracing with its perdurable toughness the goodly bark, it bounds forth the joyous conqueror of the Ocean, the messenger of wealth, civilization and christianity.

The Magnolia is the true emblem of useless, pretending, showy, fastidious aristocracy. The Oak is the tree of the people.

'PECULIAR' CONSISTENCY.

'The course of the whig party has been PECULIARLY consistent.'

Such (says the Lorain Republican) is the language of a federal sheet now before us. No one, certainly, will be so hard-hearted as to doubt the truth of their consistency is purveyed. Here are a few specimens for the public eye.'—

OUT OF OFFICE.	IN OFFICE.
1. They clamored about the 'extravagant' expenditures of government.	1. They increased these expenditures TEN MILLIONS per annum.
2. They clamored for a bankrupt act.	2. When passed they repealed it.
3. They attempted to charter a bank.	3. Their President vetoed it.
4. They clamored about long sessions of Congress.	4. They kept in session EIGHTEEN out of twenty-four months.
5. They clamored about the extravagance of the White House.	5 They appropriated thousands of dollars for more furniture.
6. They clamored about the issue of treasury notes.	6. They increased the issue to over 11 MILLIONS.
7. They clamored about blood hounds.	7. They re-appointed to office Gov. Call, of Florida, who originally purchased the blood hounds.
8. They clamored about a public debt.	8. They increased that debt from FIVE TO THIRTY MILLIONS.
9. They clamored about removals from office for opinion's sake.	9. They removed several thousand honest, efficient men from office for "opinion's sake."
10. They clamored about office holders interfering in elections.	10. Henry Clay and the whole clique of whig office-holders "stump it" yearly thro' the country.

Who now but will admit that the course of the whig party has been 'PECULIARLY CONSISTENT.'

WHAT HAVE THE WHIGS DONE?

What have the Whigs done since they came into power?

They have created a National Debt of about Forty millions.

They have made bankrupt the nation.

They have dishonored the country, and brought ruin, shame and disgrace upon their party.

They have killed one President, and endeavored to make another politically infamous.

They have quarrelled among themselves, and made their party the laughing stock of the whole country.

They have been 'mene, mene, tekel, upharsin'—weighed in a balance and found wanting.

What have they not done?

They have not secured to the laboring man two dollars a day and roast beef.

They have not raised the wages of labor.

They have not regulated the Exchanges. (But they have become uniform in spite of them.)

They have not established a sound currency. (But it is growing sounder in spite of them.)

They have not given us the better times.

They have not raised the price of the farmers' produce.

They have not relieved the distress of the people.

They have not fulfilled a single promise made to the people before the last Presidential campaign.—Maine Age.

GETTING A PARDON.—A convict, named Green McDonald, was recently pardoned by Governor Shannon, of Ohio. The Cincinnati Sun says a fraud was practised to get him out of the penitentiary. Some time ago a petition was circulated inviting John Tyler to go to that city on a visit, to which the names of many distinguished citizens were attached. So soon as all the names were procured, the heading was taking off and a petition to Gov. Shannon for the pardon of Green McDonald put in its place. The proceeding has created much feeling.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS.

While the Generals of a victorious army are enjoying the fruits and honors of success, the subalterns and rank and file, by whose bravery and devotion victory was achieved, are too often forgotten. The Press during the recent laborious contest did good service in the cause, and the exertions of its conductors are certainly worthy of remuneration now that the end for which they labored in common with them party has been attained. We know by dear bought experience, that the publication of a Democratic paper in Indiana, has heretofore been a task of little ease and less profit. We presume that the experience of others has led to a similar conclusion. We are quite sure that this must be the case with those of our Democratic brethren who have been most zealous and single-hearted in their advocacy of the cause; for in proportion to their honest zeal in favor of Democratic principles and measures, must necessarily be the hostility of their Whig opponents towards them. These and other facts of like nature, which their own good sense will naturally suggest, should be taken into consideration by the Democratic party, and particularly by its politicians, who have the ability and influence to excite a just appreciation of this great means of usefulness and knowledge among the more thoughtless or less considerate. We do not speak, in this case, for ourselves any more than for our contemporaries of the Democratic press generally. All, doubtless, need aid and assistance, and all would be more than repay for it by the increased ability it would afford them in the advocacy and dissemination of correct doctrines. The press is a most favorable time for an effort to be made of this kind; we hope it will not be suffered to pass by unimproved, and our presses be permitted to linger out, as too many of them have been fated to do heretofore, a miserable and sickly existence, of no benefit to any body, and ruinous to their conductors.

THE FIGHTING CLERGYMAN OF TENNESSEE.—In a late Tennessee paper, of which the Rev. Mr. Brownlow is editor, the following "card" appears. The Reverend gentleman talks plain, that's certain:

A CARD.—While seated in my house writing, disturbing no man, and without any knowledge of any quarrelling going on, Mr. Garland was called on as I understand, by L. C. Haynes, to send me down to him, to meet him in combat, I suppose, in the street. I once called on that base, cowardly puppy, in a manly and honorable way, and he refused to fight, but lied like a dog, in that he agreed having any weapons. I must decline the honor of paying him a second visit—but on the ground that "some good turn deserves another," he ought to call on me.—This would be turn about, and of course fair play.

I now, as heretofore, pronounce Mr. Haynes a liar, a villain and a coward; having no other markers in Jonesborough than a set of liars and rascals, and the descendants of thieves.

And this I intend as personal to all who consider themselves his backers.

WILLIAM G. BROWNLOW.

The Whig Methodist Parson—a droll fellow and not a little of a bruiser—who edits the Jonesboro (Ten.) Whig, advises all men of the success of his party in that State in the following edifying terms;

TEN HUNDRED THOUSAND CHEERS FOR THE NOBLE WHIG STATE OF TENNESSEE!!!

Attention the world, till the news of the Tennessee election is given! O ye inhabitants of this wide earth, stretch wide your eyes and look at Tennessee, while she stops the onward march of that Locofoco ball!—Heads erect!—Right foot seven feet in rear of the left, to act as a brace!—Hands raised as high as they can reach, with fingers spread wide apart!—Mouths spread wide open to catch the screams!—Faces turned towards Old Kentuck, with backs upon South Carolina!—Eyes "a feel" apart, squinting towards Louisiana and Maine!—Keeping time with the feet, after the fashion of the 'Rogue's March,' while the leaders of Missouri in Tennessee, work their way up Salt River!!!

THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT TO VIRGINIA.—By the Norfolk Beacon, we learn that President Tyler on Saturday visited the Navy Yard at Gosport, the United States ships Pennsylvania and Lexington, lying in the harbor, and also the steam frigate Missouri, at each of which vessels he was of course received with the military honors due to his station. He afterwards visited the borough of Norfolk, and partook of a splendid collation provided on the occasion. Mr. Cushing, the minister to China, was present, and responded to a complimentary toast in a speech of some length, which is highly spoken of. 'We were particularly pleased,' says the Beacon, 'by the happy manner in which Mr. Cushing alluded to the great good feeling existing between France and this country. The part that generous nation took in our great struggle for freedom was described with eloquence.' In introducing Capt. Duveyrier to those present, he appeared to remember with particular pleasure and pride the great interest which his uncle General Count Mollis fought under the American banner during the whole of that memorable contest,' &c. 'Not being able to speak the English language fluently, Mr. Cushing responded for him.' The President after dinner with a private party, embarked on board the Missouri, by which vessel he was landed at Old Point Comfort in the evening.

The last Miller Story.—The following anecdote from the Knickerbocker will do to read immediately after dinner!—Cin. Gaz.

A matter-of-fact old gentleman in New England, whose wife was a thorough going 'Destructionist,' was awakened out of his sleep by his 'possessed rib, one cold and stormy March night, with 'Husband! did you hear that noise? It's Gabriel a coming! It's the sound of his chariot wheels!' 'Oh, pshaw! you old fool!' replied the gude man, 'do you spose Gabriel is such an ass as to come on wheels, in such good sleighing as this! I tell you it's the wind; turn over and go to sleep!' We believe she did.

NEW METHOD OF MAKING SALT.—We are informed that in digging one of the salt wells at Kanawha, a vein of carburetted hydrogen (inflammable) gas was struck, and that the gas comes up in large quantities, mixed with the salt water.

The proprietor has contrived to separate the gas from the water, and while the water is conveyed into the boilers through one set of pipes, the gas is conveyed to another set under the boilers, where it is inflamed, and evaporates the water. Thus the same well yields the water to make salt, and the fuel to evaporate it.

We are informed that salt is actually manufactured at this well, at the net cost of two cents per bushel. If nature continues to yield this double product, this well will be worth more than a silver mine.—Cincinnati Chron.

NEW MODE OF MAKING SOAP.—The Westminster Carrollonian mentions the manufacture of a barrel of Soap by Mrs. Mogl, of that town, without the aid of fire. The whole process of change from ley to soap is affected by the heat of the sun, without any trouble. It must be regarded as an economical improvement on the old process.

We know of an economical housewife in this city who has been in the habit for many years of manufacturing in the manner above indicated, all the soft soap she required for household purposes. The process is exceedingly simple, it being only necessary to use an old barrel as a ley-hopper, and draw off every now and then a bucket of ley which is poured upon the grease, that should be placed in another barrel and set in a position where it is exposed to the rays of the sun, but to be covered over in rainy weather. In this manner, with the aid of occasional stirring, the soap will be fit for use in a few weeks. One barrel of ashes and four lbs. of rendered fat will make a barrel of soap. It is not necessary, however, to read up the fat, as it may be thrown into the barrel in any state, and will be consumed by the ley.

PHOSPHORESCENCE IN THE LIVING BODY.—Mr. G. F. Collier relates in the Lancet of June 10th, 1843, a curious example of this. It occurred in a man 43 years of age, of full stature, robust, herculean strength, and was for some time annoyed with psoriasis of the palms. He is a gross feeder, extremely fond of fat meat, in the use of which he indulges very extensively. For several days prior to his skin becoming phosphorescent, he had been indulging in the use of grossly fat food to an extent exceeding his usual habit, and had been taking large quantities of lemon juice, his own remedy for psoriasis. He is very temperate in the use of fermented liquors, and seldom takes spirits. He had been reading late, as he was wont to do, and on retiring, he had clothed the head of a chair with his shirt instead of throwing it over the chair back. On getting into bed he saw to his surprise a blaze, or halo, of phosphorescence, representing the headless trunk of a human body, at the foot of the bed, where he had disposed his apparel. His curiosity being excited, he got out of bed, and after approaching and handling the shirt, he was induced to examine his own skin. He found his arms and chest in the same luminous state. When the phosphorescence faded on the linen, friction restored it. The phenomenon continued for several days, and has since recurred on the same error of diet.

HOW STANDS THE IRISH REPEAL.—It is manifest from the tenor of the foreign news by the Hibernia and Great Western, that Ireland still continues in a state of almost revolutionary agitation.

O'Connell is still the storm King. He is not only raising the tempest, but from the confident manner of all his speeches he evinces a perfect confidence that he can control the storm as he pleases. It is gratifying to add that it seems to be his rigid determination to obtain the establishment of an Irish Parliament, peaceably and according to law. In this respect he shows a clear head, infinitely above the sagacity of demagogues, in not underestimating the immense power of Public Opinion.

"If O'Connell rigidly adheres to this commanding line of conduct, we have not a doubt of the final success of the repeal movement. It cannot fail. The civilized world will feel more sensitively than ever that Ireland is right; and the English Parliament will finally yield to the power of a public opinion which is resistless, because it is based on right, and which though firm and unyielding, is not domineering or anarchial, but law abiding.

It may be asked, how feel the English ministry? Sir Robert Peel is evidently frightened—his enemies say paralyzed. His tory supporters seem to be falling off, for Wellington and Lindhurst appear to be constantly urging coercive measures forthwith, to put down a mere excitement lest it may merge in rebellion. These inveterate tories who care no more for the people than they do for their hounds, are supported by the apostate Brougham.—Albany Argus.

GEN. CASS IN FRANCE.—We make the following extract from Mr. Walsh's Paris correspondence of the National Intelligencer dated August 1, 1843:

'It may not annoy Gen. Cass to be informed, in my way, that he is remembered (which speaks much in itself) by all the members of the Royal circle, the Ministers and a number of the persons, including the diplomatic corps, whose recollection it would chiefly prize. Their enquiries, fraught with esteem and kindness, extend to the ladies of his family, who preceded him home. It is truly said that the best part of life is to the domestic affections—we might add, the next best is in social regards worthily earned. In April last, the Minister of Public Instruction, in a note which he had occasion to write me, requested the transmission of his cordial and constant respect to the General.

Billings, the man who committed such extensive forgeries in Utica and thereabouts, has been arrested. Some persons connected with the Chenango Bank came on here in pursuit of him, and put officer Smith on the track. He traced the rogue to the Falls, and thence down the lake and river to Quebec, where he arrested him, and had him committed to await a requisition from Governor Bouck.—Buffalo Com.

TO HOUSEWIVES.—Recent experiments in more than one family in this city, save the Delaware Gazette, have established that the plant known to botanists as the Polygonum Punctatum, commonly called water pepper of smart weed, and which may be found in great abundance along ditches, ponds, lanes, and barn yards, is an effectual and certain destroyer of bedbugs. It is said to exercise the same poisonous effect on the flea. A strong decoction is made of the herb, and the places infested with the insect are carefully washed therewith.

A BATHING PREDICAMENT.—On Monday morning a gentleman and his lady, on a visit to the far famed bathing town of Redcar, Yorkshire, not satisfied with the restriction and forms attendant on bathing from a machine, started early in the morning in their phaeton to a favorable spot two miles up the sands, the lady providing herself with a bathing dress, the gentleman, as gentlemen generally do when bathing, declining such encumbrances. After undressing on the sand, and placing their clothing in the carriage, they took to the water, but had scarcely recovered from their first 'dip,' when to their dismay they observed the horse start at a smart trot with the carriage, dresses and all, leaving them in the primitive state of our first parents. After some time it was arranged for the lady to proceed to Marsque, where she arrived barefoot and bareheaded, and after relating the unfortunate but laughable account of the horse, succeeded in borrowing a dress for herself and husband, which was forwarded in all speed; and he was soon recognized by the messenger, patiently enduring his woful plight, though up to the chin in water.—Cheltenham Examiner.

Birdnesting Extraordinary—Fortunate Escape.—About the 25th ult. a lad named Gregory, 12 years of age, an inmate of the West London Union House, at Edmonton, England, conceived the idea of robbing a sparrow's nest which was made in the brick work at the top of one of the chimneys of the building. To accomplish his exceedingly hazardous intention the little fellow had to make his way through a strong iron grating the bars of which were placed so close together that it would be considered almost impossible to pass the head of an infant through, but he nevertheless managed, by some extraordinary workings and exertions of the body to squeeze through. He had to climb up to the top of a chimney six feet high, unaided by any other means than that which his hands and feet afforded him, and this he, with wonderful dexterity, accomplished. Seated on the chimney top he drew from the nest three young sparrows, and carefully put them in his bosom, and was about to descend with his prize, when unfortunately the brickwork gave way and he fell to the ground, a distance no less than 44 feet. Some of the inmates seeing the accident, rushed to the spot, expecting to find the young adventurer smashed to pieces, but to their great surprise and pleasure they found him able to get upon his legs, and only complained of an injury of one of his arms. His anxiety for the safety of the young sparrows seemed greater than his injuries, and he was quite delighted that they received no injury. He was examined by the surgeon of the Union, who found his arm fractured, but with the exception of this and a few slight bruises, he had received no further injury. The young sufferer has since been an object of curiosity to all who have viewed the scene of the exploits.

DELUGE IN NEW YORK.

The New York papers state that that city has been deluged with rain, which began to fall on Monday evening and continued until Tuesday noon. The Journal of Commerce of Tuesday, 2, A. M. says:

Since the days of old Noah, Senior, we know not when our city has been visited with such a deluge of rain as poured down between midnight last night and eight o'clock this morning. During this whole period the rain was increasing, and the greater part of the time it fell in torrents. Three tubs which stand on a pier extending into the North River, were filled to the depth of three inches and a quarter; nearly all of which fell in the course of eight hours.

Our streets presented the appearance of rivers. Hundreds of cellars were filled with water; but the damage occasioned thereby is less than might be supposed, from the fact that most of the goods had been removed.—In the upper part of the city several houses were partially undermined, and considerable injury was occasioned by gullieying. In various places the fire engines are employed in clearing the basement rooms and cellars of water. We fear we shall hear of extensive damage in the country! Indeed it can be hardly otherwise.

A FACT FOR THE PEOPLE.—We notice, in the West Chester Record, that Mr. Macartney, of that borough, has made an ingenious improvement, by which bootmakers, in place of the present tedious process of boot crimping, can be able to crimp boot-legs composed of leather of the most unyielding nature in a few minutes.

THE QUESTION NOT SETTLED.—An exchange paper says that the question, 'May a man marry his wife's sister?' can only be properly answered by the sister herself, when the widower pops the question.

A REMARKABLE INSTANCE OF ACCIDENTAL RECOGNITION occurred, according to the 'Ellistonian Papers,' in North Britain, in 1793. Mrs. Gross of Covent Garden Theatre, was, in that year, acting in Glasgow, and on one occasion the Provost being present, the lady had no sooner made her appearance on the Stage, than the agitated functionary exclaimed, 'Stop—stop the play!—I would speak with that woman!' Great was the consternation throughout the auditory at the highly dramatic emeute, and the curtain being immediately lowered, the perturbed Provost made his way at once into the actress's dressing room. After a few hurried words, he discovered her to be his own wife, from whom he had been separated for nearly twenty years. Each had supposed the other dead! The magistrate, hereupon, bore off the lady, arm in arm, to his own house, and the next evening she took her place in front of the theatre, amongst the patronesses of the art, where she was quite as much a heroine as when sustaining the woes of Cleista herself.

RICHARD M. JOHNSON.
(Subject to the decision of a National Convention.)

☞By divine permission, the Rev. Mr. Latad, of the Protestant Episcopal Communion will perform Religious Services on Sunday, 24th inst (to-morrow) at the Court House at the usual hours.

☞The Rev. Michael Edgar Shawe, Catholic Missionary, is now in Fort Wayne, and will lecture on Sunday next, the 24th inst at early candle light, and during the ensuing week.

The article in our paper of the 2d inst. on the subject of selecting state officers from amongst democrats residing out of Indianapolis, has been noticed by the Lawrenceburgh Beacon, the Lafayette Standard, and the State Sentinel. These papers all agree with us in the general principle, but think an exception ought to be made in favor of Mr. Palmer for Treasurer. The Standard and Sentinel think our opposition to Mr. Palmer may be owing to the circumstance of there being some person here desirous of the office. In this they are mistaken. We are not aware that any person here is seeking the nomination, nor have we heard the name of any one suggested. Our only motive was a desire to have a complete and radical change: to have all our state offices filled by men fully competent to discharge their duties—who should be selected on account of their qualifications, rather than from having formerly held office. Rotation in office we consider the true democratic doctrine. We had no other objection to Mr. Palmer: he has been a faithful and efficient public servant; and if our friends generally think him the most competent man in our ranks for the responsible office of Treasurer of State, and deem it advisable to again avail themselves of his services, we shall cheerfully acquiesce. Our design in penning the article was to elicit an expression of the public feeling on the subject, that the Legislature might act accordingly.

We have heard many remarks from persons visiting Indianapolis, not at all favorable to the characters of the juntos of office-holders and office-seekers there.—This feeling appears to be shared equally by both parties. From the tone of the remarks in the State Sentinel we think they have misunderstood our feelings on this subject. If their object be to aid Mr. Palmer they are pursuing a wrong course. We, in common with the democratic editors in all parts of the State, feel equally interested in a proper selection of officers, with the editors of the State Sentinel, and claim the right of freely expressing our views and our preferences. Any thing like dictation from Indianapolis will not assuage the feeling which exists against the cliques and juntos at that city.

Mr. Powell's theatrical company left here on Thursday last for Lafayette, to the favorable notice of the citizens of which place we beg to recommend them, as fully deserving their patronage. Mr. Powell and his company have made many friends here, as well by their talents as performers, as by their correct and gentlemanly conduct as citizens. He received a tolerable support while here, but the amount he was compelled to pay for county and city licences, we are sorry to say, totally consumed his profits, and we much doubt if he took a cent more from the place than he brought in.

We think the law imposing a tax for the benefit of the county of $5 on each evening's performance, in addition to the city license, is unjust and oppressive, and ought to be repealed or modified. We do not think that good theatrical performances ought to be suppressed, yet the heavy tax levied on them almost amounts to a prohibition, especially in the smaller towns. It would be better to take off the county license and make the amount to be charged discretionary with the authorities of the city or town where they propose to exhibit. In this way, whatever amount was levied would be received by the citizens of the place, who in fact pay it; and if they thought a company deserving of countenance and support they could reduce the amount of the license, so as to enable the poor player to pocket a fair share of his hard earnings, instead of, as at present, flinking from him the greater part in the shape of a county license.

Improvement of the Roads.—We are pleased to notice that the interest felt on this subject continues unabated. Meetings have been held at several places on the line of the Northern roads, and all manifest a design to co-operate with our citizens in their laudable design. At Kendallville, Noble Co. 200 days' work was subscribed. Mr. Wm. Mitchell has been appointed commissioner on the Mongoquinong Road, and has signified his intention of proceeding immediately to the execution of his trust. It is now getting rather late in the season, and we hope no time will be lost in putting the work under contract. We have strong hopes that we shall, ere long, have good roads.

Daily mail from Toledo to Lafayette.—We perceive by the Lafayette, Defiance and Toledo papers that the movement made here in favor of a Daily mail along the line of the Wabash and Erie Canal meets the approbation of the citizens of those places, and that preparations are making to second our endeavors. This is as it should be. A boon of such obvious necessity and justice to the citizens of a rapidly improving country cannot, we think, be denied, if our claims are properly presented to the head of the Post Office Department.

New York State Convention:—The Democratic state convention assembled at Syracuse, N. Y. on the 5th ult. Wm. E. Marcy was appointed President. The convention decided by a vote of 103 to 19 against electing delegates by the district system. Resolutions were adopted unanimously, in favor of Martin Van Buren for President, and instructing their delegates to vote for him at the Baltimore Convention. All of right in the Empire state; and the whigs who have been flattering themselves that the Little Dutchman could not get the vote of his own state—that dissentions existed among the democrats as to the choice of their candidate, &c.—will now see that they were 'puffed up with an artificial delusion.' New York is entitled to 36 votes. Present appearances indicate that Van Buren will be our next President. So mote it be.

AUDITOR OF STATE.

We learn that Amzi L. Wheeler Esq. of Marshall County, her late popular and able Representative, will be a candidate for the office of Auditor of Public Accounts. Mr. Wheeler's qualifications are undoubted.

Horatio J. Harris Esq. of Delphi, late Senator from Carroll, is also a candidate and will be warmly supported by his friends.

A new Auditor will be chosen beyond a doubt, and as the office is one of great responsibility and delicacy, the Democracy owe it to themselves and to the people of the State, to make such a selection as will subserve the public good. A man of experienced business habits, of close application, of untiring industry, can alone fill the office with credit to himself or profit to the State. There are many men in the Democratic ranks as competent as Mr. Morris, and it is time the principle of rotation was applied to him. He has wielded an immense influence against us, and it is time to turn the tables. —Goshen Democrat.

Fort Wayne Road.—Is it not time for the citizens of Elkhart to second the movements of Fort Wayne in improving the road leading to that city? The road through the Elkhart bottom from Benton to Shobe's, is execrable; and yet the ground is good all the way. At some seasons of the year, it is almost impassable. It is time, certainly, for the south part of the county to make a movement. If we wish to secure the trade of Noble county, and bring the western travel through Elkhart county, we must at least have roads that are Jacksonable. What do you say to a meeting at Benton on that subject? Will the Benton boys start the ball?—Goshen Democrat.

The Harvest.—The Democratic harvest is coming in rich. The Whig crop is almost entirely winterkilled on account of there being so much Clay in the soil. In Louisiana they say Clay lands will be entirely abandoned by agriculturists. The sickly yield from such a soil in our neighborhood is mostly cheat, chess or smut. Farmers know their interests too well to attempt to embark their labor on such bottoms.—Chicago Democrat.

VOTE IN INDIANA.

The whole number of votes polled at the recent election in this state was 121,099; as follows:

For Whitcomb	60,714
For Bigger	53,701
For Demming (abolition)	1,685
Total	121,099

Whitcomb's majority over Bigger is 2,013
His majority of all the votes given is 329.

In 1840, the whole number of votes polled was 117,306; as follows:

For Bigger	63,006
For Howard	54,397
Total	117,306

From the above it will be seen that the number of votes polled this year is greater than that of any former year, being 3,793 more than in 1840. It will also be seen that the Democratic vote has increased 9,117 since 1840, whilst the Whig vote has fallen off 4,308. in the same time.

VERMONT ELECTION.

The returns of votes for Governor from 118 towns, give 13,259 for Kellogg, (Dem.) 15,384 for Mattocks, (Whig) and 2,112 for Williams [Abolition) and scattering. The following counties and parts of counties, have been heard from:

		Kellogg.	Mattocks	Williams and scattering
Windsor,	22 towns,	2,335	3,643	547
Windham,	14 "	1,429	1,913	214
Rutland,	11 "	761	1,667	125
Addison,	8 "	437	975	62
Orange,	8 "	1,316	982	297
Franklin,	9 "	1,037	1,202	143
Washington	15 "	2 029	1 394	156
Caledonia,	15 "	1,481	1,598	137
Chittenden,	4 "	810	803	77
Orleans,	4 "	379	434	40
Lamoille,	5 "	661	265	270
Bennington,	3 "	592	591	35
	118 towns,	13,259	15,384	2,112
			15,371

Mattock's majority thus far is only 13

He is probably defeated in the State.

The Legislature will probably stand better for the democrats than it did last year. In 121 towns, which last year chose 42 democrats, 79 whigs, and 1 abolitionist, to the House, the democrats this year have 48, the whigs 69, abolitionists 3—and of these towns, 11 have made no choice.

FORGERY.

The Massachusetts Gazette contains an account of an astounding forgery, in the sum of $41,000 just brought to light. The forgery was perpetrated by William Goddard, Postmaster at Petersham, Massachusetts. Goddard has been arrested.

N. B. Goddard, it seems, has received $40,000 in cash from his forgeries, and is held to bail in the sum of $5000. He has, therefore, only to run away, to make a speculation of $35,000.

The Maumee River Times says—

'There is nothing that Locofocoism touches that it does not destroy.'—It has been laying its deadly fingers upon the "cocons" of Louisiana and the 'Banner State.' It will have a "touch" at the 'universal coon party' next year, and it wont leave enough of it to make a 'grease spot.' There may be a little coarse fat found, here and there, after the contest of 1844, but that will be all.—Manhattan Telegraph.

Elected as above	142
Total members	223—last Congress, 242.

Of the 99 members yet to be chosen, the Whigs may possibly get 23, which would make their total number 66, or less than one third of the whole House. On the other hand, the Whigs will have a small majority in the Senate, which is now full with the exception of four members, viz: two from Tennessee, one from Maryland, and one from Illinois. Parties now stand, in that body, 26 Whigs, including Mr. Rives of Virginia, who will vote without much reference to party interests, and 23 Democrats. The 4 Senators yet to be elected, will probably be divided two and two; so that after their election, parties in that body will be divided as at present, giving the Whigs a majority of four including Mr. Rives.

Seizure of the Sandwich Islands.—A London Correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser writes as follows concerning the recent seizure of the Sandwich Islands by a Naval officer of the British Government:

'Hardly a doubt now remains that the British Government, will immediately and formally disavow the military occupancy of the Sandwich Islands—an event which will be instantly followed by a formal recognition of their independence on the part of France and very possibly a joint guarantee of that independence by the great powers. This government has already appointed a consul general for these Islands, who will shortly proceed to his post. A greater tissue of villany and misrepresentation than that which induced Lord George Paulet's violent course has seldom been concocted in the world, and would have been quite impossible without the aid of a little European civilization.'

A Monster.—We learn from an English paper that a gentleman travelling along the road near Colebrook, had his attention attracted to the screams of a child in the cart of a tramping woman, who had two other children totally blind also with her. The cries of the child were so distressing that he insisted on knowing the cause, but not getting a satisfactory answer, he forcibly removed the bandage from its eyes, when horrid to relate, found them encased with two small perforated shells, in which were two beetles for the purpose of destroying the sight. The woman was instantly seized and given into custody, and at the Magistrates meeting at Eaton, committed for trial. There is too much reason to fear that the wretch produced the blindness of the other two children by a similar means.

FOREIGN NEWS.

TEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Britannia, Capt. Hewitt, arrived at Boston on Saturday morning, with dates from Liverpool to the afternoon of the 19th ult., and London to the 18th. The markets, generally seem to have improved.

Parliament has been unusually busy in discussing and acting upon various questions of interest. In the debate on Irish affairs, Lord Brougham spoke of the speeches of "a person named Tyler, said to be the son of the Accidental President of the United States," but passed them over by saying that no one was answerable for the foolieries, the excessive fooleries, of his family. He refused to believe that President Tyler was the author of the Repeal letter published over his name.

A spirited debate was had upon the Washington Treaty as connected with the surrender of fugitive slaves. The Attorney General gave his opinion that they could not be surrendered. Lord Palmerston made a very able speech on the affairs of Servia, into which he wove a fierce assault on the Government. Mr. D'Israeli followed in the same strain, and took the house by surprise with a speech of great ability and independence. In the debates upon the state of Irish affairs the do nothing policy of the Government has been attacked with great bitterness.

Parliament was to be prorogued by the Queen in person on the 24th ult.

In Wales, the disturbances still continue. Some concession has been made to the demands of the disaffected, but this seems only to increase the discontent.

In Ireland, the Repeal agitation continues with unabated zeal and success. The greatest gathering that has yet been held, took place on Tara Hill, a place remarkable in Irish history, on the festival of the Assumption.

Mr. Dennis John Blake, recently dismissed from the Customs, has been arrested on a charge of having defrauded the government to the amount of $320,000. He had recently retired to a fine estate in Dublin.

Letters have been received by O'Connell and read at the Repeal Meetings, from sympathizers in France, offering aid and shelter, if it shall be needed, to the Repealers of Ireland.

The dismissal of Justices still continues.

A riot occurred at a fair near Galway, on the 1st ult. Two persons were killed by the firing of the police, and several others were badly wounded.

Ireland.—The Repeal cause continues to advance manifestly. The greatest meeting of Repealers which has yet taken place was held at Tara Hill, on Assumption Day, August 15th, a great festival in the Catholic Calendar. Religious ceremonies preceded the meeting. An English paper says:—O'Connell's speech was in his best style—more earnest and impassioned and less lumpy than usual.

'I feel,' exclaimed he, 'the awful responsibility to my country and my Creator which the part I have taken in this great movement imposes upon me.' This speech is more remarkable, however, for the deep and subdued spirit of earnestness which marked it, than for anything novel or striking. This meeting has excited greater alarm on this side of the water connected, with the repeal movement, than any former one—or indeed all put together. The London 'Times' has the most desponding article which has yet appeared in its columns on this now alarming subject of repeal. A crisis, it is admitted on all hands, is not distant. The following account of the meeting, which is extremely interesting is by a correspondent writing under date of Dublin, August 16.

The greatest meeting, in point of numbers, enthusiasm, and importance, which ever took place in this, or perhaps any other country, was held to-day at the famous Hill of Tara. I have just returned from it, most deeply impressed with the conviction (in opposition to my previous views) that the Imperial Parliament has now to choose between full redress of Irish grievances, the Repeal of the Union, or civil war. I feel assured, too, that unless the first be very soon granted, fully and freely, one of the last two will be the only alternative.

O'Connell left Dublin at nine this morning, followed by two hundred carriages, and proceeded in procession, with banners, olive branches, blind buoys, &c., to the Hill of Tara, eighteen miles distant. Nearly every conveyance had been engaged for weeks previous, and it was with great difficulty that I succeeded in procuring a seat in a 'jaunting car' an hour later. The entire distance of eighteen Irish miles was one continued chain of vehicles of every description from coronetted carriages, barouches, cars, carts, shays, &c., down to the stout pair of pedal supporters with which every Irishman is well provided. Very many had left Dublin the night before on foot; some came from a distance of fifty miles, but all pressed eagerly forward to the hill. The road sides were lined with aged men, women and children, all wearing green branches, and rending the air with cheers and shouts for Repeal!

Our vehicle could not get within two miles of the hill, both sides of the road beyond being filled with unharnessed horses and cars. We walked on through the dense masses of people, pouring onward, and bearing us along in their ride, but all peaceful and sober and remembering the sentiment, which waved on many banners, that the 'who man who commits a crime, gives strength to the enemy." A triumphal arch bore the inscription, 'we hail, with joy, Ireland's Liberator!' and another claimed 'Ireland for the Irish, and the Irish for Ireland.'

On nearing the platform, the mass of people, extending over the various summits, as far as the eye could reach, and estimated to number, at least five hundred thousand, became almost impenetrable; but, at length, half crushed and suffocated, I came within sight and hearing of O'Connell, who stood before me, with his high forehead half hidden by his travelling cap, and his massive features quivering with excitement, as he poured forth, with solemn and thrilling earnestness, the torrent of his fiery indignation against the Saxon oppressors.

The scene along was exciteme nt enough. Here was the ancient palace of Ireland's original kings. Here was the spot where they were elected, and here the native chieftains bound themselves, by all the pledges of honor and religion, to defend their country against the stranger. Here, in 'Teemore of the Kings,' was Christianity first preached to the monarchs; and here, on this day, held sacred by Catholics, is the Ascension of the Virgin, were the rites of their religion performed.

More recent, and yet more stirring associations, are here. In the eventful '98, here was a fierce battle, and here are the rude entrenchments, and in their midst the mound beneath, which are buried, in one grave, a hundred massacred Irishmen, whose remains I was there told, (but for the honor of human nature, I would fain disbelieve it,) the commander of the British army at first ordered to be given to his hounds! At the head of her grave stands the 'Lia Fail,' or stone of destiny, on which were crowned the ancient Kings of Ireland; a relic one having been sent to Scotland, and thence to England.

What scenes could more strikingly arouse the passions of Irishmen? An adventure of my own among them, to-day, will give you a faint idea of their enthusiasm. I had penetrated the crowd around the "Croppie's Grave.'

Upon it were kneeling the friends of the murdered; praying for the souls of the departed; and as they arose and brushed the drops from their eyes, others would take their places. Stern faces surrounded the spot, and among them was one who wore the fragments of a hat which had been destroyed on the very spot in '98. Is not the boldness of his avowal a strong symptom? My appearance made me a marked object among the fine ze coats, and I heard matters about the 'Saxon.' To quiet them, I told the apparent leader that I was not an Englishman, but an American. His whole face lighted up, and exclaiming, 'An American sir? Welcome to Ireland, sir,'—he turned to the lowering throng and cried, 'Boys, here is an American—three cheers for him.'

The cheers were most heartly given, with upturned hats, and he continued—'He is from America, the only free country in the world; three times three I' and again their shouts rang out. 'Clear away the grave,' he then said, 'and let the American gentleman see it. Please to walk over it, sir. It is ten yards long, and here are thrown in a hundred fine boys, murdered by Saxon treachery.' I complied with his request, and as I was then endeavouring to escape, he said, 'Might I make bould to ax leave to take your hand, sir, before you go?' I of course gave it, and they all then pressed forward to shake hands, thrusting their hands over each other's heads, and saying, 'Welcome to auld Ireland, sir. Welcome to Ireland. We have rough hands, but warm heart-.' Again they gave three times three cheers, and the distant groups catching the sound, re-echoed the shouts, till the whole hill of Tara resounded with cheers for America.

It would be more prudent to shake a torch over a barrel of gunpowder than to excite such material. O'Connell was wiser. He made no appeal to their passions, but threw on the ancient scent of Ireland's power, forcibly, but calmly, declared the Union a nullity—void in principle, and in constituted law. He declared it null, because no authority was vested in the Legislature to pass the act of Union.

He adjured them to act peacably and quietly, but firmly, determinedly. He laughed at the Duke of Wellington's threats, and said that, brave as the army was, 'Ireland, roused as she now is, could, if they made war on us, furnish women enough to beat the Queen's forces.'

He announced the appointment of Repeal magistrates and arbitrators to settle, without expense, the disputes of the people, without employing the government officers. This will be a very pregnant movement. His last word said most truly that, 'Here are thousands of persons assembled with force enough to carry any battle that ever was fought, and yet they separate with the tranquility of schoolboys breaking up in the afternoon.'

Such is the brief but comprehensive abstract of his speech, but no words can express the reception by the multitude. Far as eye could reach, was a sea of heads, upturned to the 'Liberator,' eager for the sounds which his stenterian voice spread around. At every pause, shout after shout made the earth quake, and he might well say that they were enough to recall to life the Kings and Chiefs of old Ireland.'

They parted peacably and joyfully. Not one did I see drunk; not one used his shillalagh; they met and parted by the hundreds, like a band of brothers.

A Bank Robbery in Boston.—The Boston Transcript notices an ingenious bank robbery which came to light in that city on Tuesday week. It seems, says the Transcript, that on the 16th ult, two packages of $17,000 each, in bills on the Milbury Bank were sent to that Bank by the Suffolk Bank in Boston, and charged to their account as deposites. On Monday, a large quantity of the Milbury bills came to the Suffolk Bank, so as to exceed the deposite of the former in the latter; and the Milbury Bank was accordingly notified to redeem the balance. The directors of the latter, deeming it impossible that any great quanity of their circulation could come into the Market, did not take immediate measures for such a contingency. But as the bills did continue to flow into the market more rapidly than was thought consonant with the safety of the Bank, the Suffolk refused to redeem them, and notice was accordingly given to that effect in the papers. On Monday afternoon an express was sent up to Millbury, in order to ascertain the cause of the Bank being dishonored. The cashier said it was impossible that the bills could have got into the market to the extent named; and the first movement was to examine the two $17,000 packages, which still lay untouched in the vault of the Bank. One of these packages contained what it purports it to contain, namely, $17,000 in good bills; but from the other, the whole $17,000 had been ingeniously extracted, and blown paper, with the ends nicely cut off, substituted in place of the money!

Married.—On Saturday last, by Rev. Mr. Boyd, Mr. Thomas Warner, of this city, to Miss Newton Howard Nicker late of Lowestoff, England.

On Thursday, by Rev. Mr. Boyd, Mr. Henry C. Crumley, to Miss Elizabeth Philley, both of this place.

Died,—On Saturday evening last, aged 26 years, Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, wife of Mr. B. Smith, of this city.

The Hon. Nathaniel West, of Indianapolis, died at Salem, Mass. at the residence of his father on the 7th inst., aged 69 years.

Died, On Monday the 18th inst. suddenly, of Inflammation of the Lungs, Thomas Johnson, Esq. Attorney at Law, in the 37th year of his age. To note with proper comment the demise of good men, while due to the memory of the dead, is not less so to the living, as the virtues of the departed may be to them a theme of profitable contemplation. The history of Mr. Johnson affords much that is worthy of example to all, but especially may the younger portion of community—the young man just starting in the world—find, in this case, an additional assurance that perseverance and integrity will be crowned with success. Mr. J. was a native of Pennsylvania, his father and family removing at an early day to Belmont co. Ohio, where he commenced the study of Law. In 1832 he was admitted to practice in the several courts of this State, in Wayne county, thus identifying himself with the interests of the west—a poor young man—his reliance, his own resources—he soon after removed to this town, where by his unbending integrity and industry, he has attained an honorable competence, and a high place in public estimation. Courteous and gentlemanly in his department—generous and charitable towards the failings of others—he had no enemies, but was esteemed by all who knew him. As a Lawyer he was faithful to his clients—had an extensive practice in this Circuit—was eminent in his profession;—and it need scarcely be added that his loss to the Bar of this county, and as a citizen, is one which will be deeply felt, and that his memory will long be held in grateful remembrance.—Com.

Huntington, Tuesday Morning, September 19th, 1843.

D. H. Colerick, Esq. announced in an appropriate manner to the Court and bar in open Court that Thomas Johnson, Esq. one of the Attorneys of said Court, late of the city of Fort Wayne, had departed this life on yesterday at said city, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, A. M. and thereupon the court adjourned until one o'clock of the same day: in the interim of which adjournment, the Bar met with a view of taking the necessary steps to express the deep sense of their respect for the memory of their deceased brother, and of condolence with his bereaved family: whereupon Henry Cooper, Esq. of said city was called to the chair, and Lucien P. Ferry chosen secretary; and thereupon upon motion David H. Colerick, William H. Coombs, and James R. Slack, Esqrs. were by the chair appointed a committee to draw up resolutions in furtherance of the object of the meeting.

D. H. Colerick, Esq. chairman of said committee, then reported the following resolutions and recommended their adoption:

Resolved, That in the death of our departed brother, the bar has lost one of its most useful and honorable members—one in whose integrity it put unlimited confidence—and who in the excitement of forensic conflict was distinguished for his calm and subdued forbearance, and when he had occasion to rebuke aggression it was tempered with dignity—and whose generous heart was too noble to give a resting place within its pure precincts to envy or malice. As a citizen he was plain and unassuming in his manners, pure and incorruptible in his moral attributes and generous to a fault; and as a husband, a father, and a brother, he was all that imperfect mortals and makes admirable the spheres of those economical relations.

Resolved, That the members of the Court and bar of the 12th Judicial circuit of the state of Indiana do now tender their unfeigned condolence to the family of our deceased brother for their irreparable loss, trusting that 'He who tempers the wind' will assuage their grief and assuring them that we deeply and truly sympath se with them in their affliction.

Resolved, That the members of the court be requested, and that the bar will wear a badge of mourning on the left arm for the period of thirty days as a token of respect to the memory of our deceased brother.

Resolved, That the proceedings in this behalf be entered on the Order Book of the Huntington Circuit Court, published in the Times and Sentinel of said city, and a copy thereof be sent to the relations of the deceased.

Which resolutions being adopted nem. con. the meeting then adjourned.

Rates of Freight from Fort Wayne to New York.
Ashes, Pork and Lard, $12 00 per ton.
Flour, 1 10 " barrel.
Other freights, by contract, from 1.15 per hundred to $14 per ton.
Wheat, [to Buffalo] 16 " bushel.

There has been a decline in the price of wheat the present week, owing to the recent news from England the eastern wheat and flour market is very dull and prices are exceedingly low. The price now quoted here is higher than is warranted if reference is had to present prices east, but there seems to be a disposition among the resident purchasers to save the producer from sacrifice, anticipating a better quotation in the eastern market before the close of navigation.

Should prices advance so as to warrant it most of the wheat purchased here and along the line of canal would be shipped to the eastern markets this fall; otherwise it will be held over. Wheat is worth but 62½ in Toledo and at the other ports along the lake it is selling at corresponding rates. It is not likely that the usual quantity of wheat will be forwarded to the eastern market this season, as none can be purchased by agents at the present limit.

Our market in other respects is about as quoted last week, and the business of the week has been about the same. There has been within a few days past three extensive Hardware establishments opened here, and Hanna Hamilton & Co. are now opening a very extensive assortment of Dry Goods Groceries &c. in the splendid block of buildings newly erected on the corner of Columbia and Barr streets.

Toledo, Sept. 15.—Wheat 62; Corn 31 a 32.
Buffalo, Sept. 11.—Wheat 75 a 76. Flour 3,75.
N. York, Sept. 9.—Flour, Genesee, $4,38 a 44. Ohio and Michigan 4,38.

STATE OF TRADE.—The various departments of trade are quite active and our merchants are all busily engaged in getting in their fall stock. The quantity of merchandise arriving by the canal and passing westward continues to be large, and the wharves are almost entirely covered with goods in transitu. The aggregate destined for points on the upper lakes is so large that an extra steamer has been put in commission on this line and despatched to Chicago, with merchandise. The Great Western was so completely crammed that it was impracticable to carry forward any of the merchandize offered.

In the grain and flour market there is the usual activity and operations are large, but prices are fast receding to the lowest standard of last season, i. e. 62 cents, a quotation which ruled here during the whole of November.

The decline in the price of wheat in this market during the past week was 8 cents a bushel which if continued into the end of the month, brings that article to the standard which it assumed on the 1st Nov. a year ago; whether it will recede below that range this fall is yet to be determined. Some think it will, others deem the market able to sustain itself after reaching 62 1-2 cents at this point.—Buffalo Com. Adv.

Water power at Wabash Town

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED at the office of the Auditor of Public Accounts in Indianapolis, until Monday the 16th of October next, for leasing all the water power at the Lock in Wabash town, (Wabash and Erie Canal.) The Lock is 9 feet lift and is supposed to afford water enough to drive three run of stones, the most of the time; but two run only will be let with the understanding that the lessee is to pay for all the water that can be supplied, not to exceed three run. This is the only power the State will have to offer at this point. A sufficient portion of ground will be set apart for the use of the lessee, on which to erect his mill and the mill yard. Bidders will state a price per power, being understood to be water sufficient to propel a run of 4½ feet mill stones, when applied to an overshot wheel of 6 feet in diameter. At this Lock there can be at least 7½ feet over shot wheel, or a fifteen foot breast wheel to be determined by the Engineer.

The highest bidder will be the lessee. If two bids are equal the choice will be determined by lot.

Proposals may be sent by mail, directed to the undersigned at Indianapolis.

External Remedy, or Liniment,

WHICH by its extraordinary powers, obstructs pains or soreness; thus pains, stiffness, white swelling, rheumatic pains or stiffness, stiffness of the joints, tumors, unnatural hardness, stiff neck, sore throat, cramp, contractions of the muscles, scrofulous enlargements, tender feet, and every description of injury affecting the exterior of the human frame are cured or relieved by his never to be sufficiently extolled remedy.

CERTIFICATE:

The following letter from Major Gen. Sanford as to the qualities of the External Remedies, speaks volumes:

New York, Feb. 9, 1842.

Dear Sir: Will you oblige me with another bottle of your excellent Liniment? It is certainly the best of the kind I have ever seen. It has cured entirely my son's knee, whose which I was so uneasy, and I have found it productive of immediate relief in several cases of external injury in my family. A few evenings since, my youngest child was seized with a violent attack of croup which was entirely removed in 20 minutes, by rubbing her chest and throat freely with the External Remedy. I think they ought to manufacture this Liniment for general use, instead of confining the use of it, as you have done to your particular acquaintance.

PROSPECTUS OF THE

New Genesee Farmer,

AND GARDNER'S JOURNAL

Vol. IV. for 1843.

HENRY COLMAN, Editor for the first quarter, and M. B. BATEMAN, for the remainder of the year.

Published by C. P. Cromwell and E. Shepard, Rochester. Sixteen pages monthly, enlarged and improved; price $1 00 per year, in advance.

THE character of the Genesee Farmer, both old and new, has been well known, and its ability and usefulness universally applauded. Published in one of the best farming districts in the world, and in one of the finest and busiest cities of the growing west, the very home of active industry and intelligence, where information and mechanical talent of the highest order are concentrated, no pains will be spared to make it all that such a paper should be.

Under present arrangements, Mr. Colman is expected to continue in the editorial department for the first third of the year; and whatever he retires from its supervision, it will pass into able and conpetent hands, who will do justice to the paper and its subscribers. Mr. Colman commenplates an agricultural tour in Europe, and will be a regular correspondent of the paper through the year.

Mr. Batchan, as travelling agent and correspondent, designs to spend most of his time among the farmers, observing their condition, and operations, and his communions will be interesting and practical. The numerous and able correspondents of the New Genesee Farmer, it is expected, will continue their valuable contributions. With these arrangements, the proprietors feel assured that the long tried friends of the Genesee Farmer will not desert the paper; but will use their influence to extend its circulation and usefulness. If each subscriber would make it an object to procure one other, he would render an essential public benefit. The correspondence being extended throughout the country, the paper will embrace the husbandry of the whole of New England, the Canadas, the Middle, the Southern and Western States, and it will communicate the fullest intelligence of the progress of agriculture in the old world. Being connected with an extensive Agricultural establishment, for seeds and implements, under the management of one of the Publishers, it will furnish information of all improvements in these departments. The proprietors will use their utmost endeavors to concentrate the best talent in their management: to have the mechanical execution and appearance greatly improved, and to render it entirely worthy of the patronage of practical and intelligent farmers.

Six Copies will be furnished for $5. Thirteen Copies for $10. On twenty copies and over, a discount of thirty per cent will be made. Payment always in advance. Bills of all specie paying banks taken at par.

Editors who will give this prospectus one or more insertions, will be entitled to receive one volume of the paper without exchanging.

Postmasters are permitted by law to remit no any fees of postage. The friends of agriculture are respectfully requested to assist in obtaining subscri ers. Back numbers or volumes can be furnished.

Communications on business or for the paper, may be addressed to Cromwell & Shepard, Rochester, N. Y.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

LADIES' COMPANION,

AND

LITERARY EXPOSITOR,

PUBLISHED BY WILLIAM W. SNOWDEN, N. Y.

THE volumes of this old and popular magazine commence with the May and November numbers.

Editors—Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, Mrs Emma C. Embury, and William W. Snowden.

With the urgent solicitation of thousands of subscribers and readers, the 'LADIES' COMPANION, in future, will be printed in a larger type. The general complaint has been, that the size of the type upon which the work has been printed since the commencement, was too small. To obviate such combination, a splendid font of new Burgoise type, which is a size larger than that formerly used, has been purchased from the foundry of George Bruce & Co., of this city—upon which the 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor' will hereafter be printed, commencing with the May number, 1843. To give greater strength to the literary character of the Magazine, the valuable aid Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney and Emma C Embury has been secured for the editorial department.

REGULAR LADY CONTRIBUTORS.

Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Mrs R. F. Ellet Miss Frances S. Osgood, Mrs. Sabn Smith, Mrs A. M. F. Annan, Mrs. E. H. Steele, Mrs. M. St Leon Loud, Mrs Lydia H. Sigourney, Mrs Emma C. Embury, Miss Hannah F. Gould; Miss Mary Ann Brown, Miss A. D. Woodbridge, Mrs. Emilina S. Smith, Miss Caroline Orne.

Hon. Mrs. Norton, Mrs. F. C. Hall, Mrs. Gore, Miss M. A. Milford, Maria Edgeworth, Mary Howitt, of England, have promised to contribute, hereafter, to the pages of the ofthe 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor. To the above unequalled list may be added the following

GENTLEMEN CONTRIBUTORS!

Professor J. L. Ingraham, W. Gilmore Simms, Louis Fitzgerald Tasistro, Henry W. Hebert Saint William Wallace, (Ky.) William B. Tappan, A. M'Makin, Wm. G. Howard, W. S. Mayo M. D., James T. Fields, Jno. C M'Cabe, M. D., Isaac M'Lellan, Jr. F. A. Durivage, Wm. Abbot, (Eng.) Henry T. Tuckerman, Revd. H. Clinch, George P. Morris, Rufus Dawes, Epes Sargent, N. P. Willis, Wm. E. Burton, Theodore S. Fay, Degar A. Poe, A. D. Paterson, Horatio Gates, Henry H Hirst, Lt. G. W. Patten, U. S. A. Jno. Broughman, (Eng.) C. F. Daniel.

OCCASIONAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Sheridan Knowles, John Neal, Mark Lemon, Professor P. H. Calvert, J. Blanche, R. Shelton Mackenzie, Late Granville Mellen, Douglass Jerrold, Late Sam'l Woodworth, W. T. Monteville, F. W. Thomas, W. H. Ainsworth, &c. &c.

Among the number of contributors to the 'Ladies' Companion,' above enumerated, will be perceived the names of many, whose charming productions have given lustre to our national literature, and whose reputation is identified with the progression of this country to that position in the world of letters, to which they have been equally instrumental in advancing it; and among these, there will be found the names of ladies who have established the claim of each woman to the possession of the loftiest intellect, in connection with more refined and delicate characteristics, and have reared an undying monument to the virtues and elevation of their sex. The talents of their contributors, it will be perceived, are of the most varied character. By this, it is rendered certain that every taste will be gratified—that every branch of elegant literature will receive attention. Poetry, tales, sketches, essays, the instructive and the amusing; the grave and the gay—will be blended, to enhance the interest of the Magazine.

MAGNIFICENT AND COSTLY PLATES!!! are now in the hands of Jordan, Halpin, A. L. Dick, J. N. Gimbrede, and other eminent artists. Mezzotint engravings, will occasionally appear. Several of these splendid plates, are already finished, and will be published during the year. Scriptural plates will also form a portion of the superb embellishments preparing for the 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor.'—Our fashion plates, which have been pronounced superior to those appearing in many other magazines, will be continued monthly or quarterly, as the change of the Parisian fashions may dictate. Engravings on wood—cap and lace patterns, will from time to time, add to the embellishments above promised. Lectures by the most celebrated professors, will be reported accurately—these serving to the readers of the Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor, a correct journal of the most interesting lectures delivered in New York, during he year. Like to portraits of many of the distinguished statesmen of America will appear, at stated periods. The public should bear in mind that the three dollar magazines contain more matter, including the costly embellishments, than any of the five dollar magazines issued in America or Europe.

The Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor, is published monthly in the city of N. York and thus established in popular favor, after a progress of many years—issued with unfailing punctuality and uniformity—endeared with a beauty of type graphical execution which proudly challenges criticism, and with engravings, rendered, in every instance, exspressly for the work, after a careful selection of the subjects—enriched constantly with fashionable and popular stastics—superintended in all its departments, with the most scrupulous care for its excellence in every particular—and filled with articles from the pens of the most popular, renowned and talented writers of which our own country or England can boast, it is by no means an unwarrantable presumption thus to claim for the 'Ladies Companion, and Literary Expositor,' the proud elevation of being a Standard National Magazine!

Looking with a jealous eye to the honor of American Literature, as well to sentiment, it is the endeavor of the proprietor of the Ladies Companion,' to be governed by principles of the broadest liberality, and to offer no apology to the public which cannot be faithfully and fully redeemed. That every promise made in times past, has been scrupulously fulfilled, is confidently asserted, and for a full confirmation of this, every reader is appealed to; and his sanctuess, it is supposed, will be a sufficient guaranty for the future.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

The 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor' is published at 'Three dollars a year, payable in advance. Two copies for five dollars, if current funds, in advance—post paid. The work is punctually issued on the first of every month, and is forwarded to subscribers by the earliest mails, strongly enveloped. New volumes commence with May and November numbers.

THE FIRST BRIGHT DREAM OF LOVE.

BY S. S. HARDING.

Beautiful is the moonlit deep,
When the waves are still,
And the winged tempest lies asleep,
Behind the shadowy hill;
But far more beautiful than this,
Or aught save Heaven above
Is one bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love.

Beautiful is the mother's tear,
O'er helpless childhood's pain,
And tones of love, fall on the ear,
Soft, as a Seraph's strain;
But far more beautiful than this,
Or aught save Heaven above,
Is that bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love

Beautiful is the bright fring'd cloud,
In summer's glorious even,
When spirit tones swell deep and loud,
From the banner'd walls of Heaven;
But far more beautiful than this,
Or aught save Heaven above,
Is that bright dream; oh yes, oh yes,
The first bright dream of Love.

From the Knickerbocker.

A PSALM OF LIFE.

Life that shall end
A challenge to its end,
And when it comes say welcome friend.'

What the heart of the young man said to the Psalmist.

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream—
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

Life is real—life is earnest—
And the grave is not its goal,
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destin'd end or way;
But to act, that each to morrow,
Find us farther than to day.

Art is long, and time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of Life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle—
Be a hero in the strife!

Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant—
Let the dead Past bury its dead;
Act, act in the glorious Present—
Heart within, and God o'er head:

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime
And departing, leave behind us
Footsteps on the sands of time.

Footsteps, that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwreck'd brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again.

Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

From the New York Sunday Mercury.

PATENT SERMON.

BY DOW, JR.

The New York Gals.

My text may be found some where in the following:

The gals are all a fleeting show,
For man's vexation given;
Their smiles of joy, their tears of woe,
Deceitful shine, deceitful flow—
There's not one true in seven.

My hearers—that the girls of New York are as fleeting are summer bowers, and that many of them as false as they are fair, is a fact well established by those who have interested themselves in the beautiful study of gaiology. From the cradle to ripened womanhood is the pleasantest path in the pleasure grounds of a female's existence, but she travels it only once—and that once occupies but a moment as it were upon the dial of time. To-day she buds—to morrow she blossoms—and the day after she scatters her rosy charms upon the frosty autumnal winds of age; and looks more like an old withered cabbage stump stuck in the sand, than like anything else the pencil of my fancy can portray. The girls, my friends, don't any of them last half so long in proportion, as a draft of soda water drank from a big bottomed tumbler. I can call them almost anything that is fleeting. They are fascinating, evanescent flowers, that bloom the fastest in the merry May of life. If left to themselves, they may perchance continue to blossom, even to the verdure sickening September of existence; but my friends, when they are once plucked, and their stems inserted in the vase of matrimony, they soon wilt and wither like a cropped cucumber and nothing on earth can restore them to their primitive freshness and beauty. They are butterflies that flirt before the admiring gaze of many whose spangled wings crumble into dust when they are once caught in the eager grasp of Hymen, leaving nothing to be compared [illegible] like a loaf of corn bread baked upon a shovel.

My dear friends! I say unto you that the girls are not only as fleeting as flax in the fire, but they are also all show. If any of you doubt the words of the preacher, you can go and stand on the corners of the streets that lead into the principal thorough-fare, called Broadway, of this sin sickening city, and there observe what a vast quantity of silks, satins, laces and ribbons, and other trumpery is carried about for exhibition on the backs of the feminine gender—and if you dont say the gals are all a show, I'll quit preaching, and go to planting potatoes, or pedling peaches. That they are a vexation to man, there can be no mistake. They bother, bewitch, bewilder and perplex us wherever we go. They, somehow or another, get so tangled up in the meshes of a man's affections, before he knows it, that it is hard to disengage them without tearing the heart strings in twain, and doing considerable other damages to his spider woven sensibilities. It wasn't so with me however, when I was young. If I found a girl fastened to my desires with the adhesive glue of love, and the dictates of prudence demanded a separation, I always laid hold with the firm grasp of resolution, and 'let her rip,' unmindful of the consequences: and so ought you to do my young friends when you find yourselves in a similar predicamen

My hearers—my text intimates that the girls are deceitful creatures, that their smiles of joy and tears of wo are all for effect.—Well, it is so in many instances. There are thousands of them who smile to entrap, and weep to win. Some are all smiles like the mornings of June—and all tears like the afternoons of April—regular saturated sponges, so full of the juice of affected feeling that the least squeeze will cause love's liquor to flow like milk from a perforated cocoanut. They are deceiving in their looks. How many do I see in my daily peregrinations, who appear at a little distance like lovely angels, clothed with the attributes of humanity; but who, when brought near to, and divested of all their artificial graces, are no more to be compared to real beauty than the tusk of a wild boar to the ivory of an elephant. Yes my friends, girls are as deceitful as thimble riggers; and you cannot be too cautious how you go to work to select one from the lot, in whom you intend to repose your trust, your confidence and your hopes of earthly happiness.

My friends—as to whether there is not more than one true in seven of the general run of girls, I am not fully prepared to say. I am persuaded however, that like pumkin blossoms, the average of false ones is very considerable at the least calculation.

They bud and bloom like all others, but after they have had all their honey sucked by this, that and t'other bee, they wilt away and leave no fruit behind them. But you, my young male friends, are not all true no more than the other sex. You dart about like humming birds, from flower to flower, in the summer of your lives—poke your bills into a variety of female posies; and then ere the autumn of existence approaches, you retire to spend the winter of your days solitary and alone, like woodchucks that have grown fat upon the clover of indulgence. You are just as false as the girls, and they are as false as a set of artificial teeth.—But my dear friends, whether male or female you must not pay any attention to what I have said, that wears the appearance of a joke, but if you can find any thing you can construe into gospel truth, I beg you to pounce upon it like a hawk upon a June bug, and profit by it to the end that the car of life may run to its destined goal and never squeak on its axle for the want of moral grease. So mote it be.

From the Charleston Mercury.

ABANDONMENT OF PRINCIPLES.

It is with astonishment that we see a proposition gravely put forth in open day, by leading whig presses, which involves a total and flagrant desertion of all the avowed principles of the party! to wit, Coon-skins, Hard Cider, Log Cabins, and the old blind pot bellied white footed Horse that Clay used to go to mill on! Upon all these first principles, the Whig party shamelessly propose to turn their backs and to adopt a new creed—the very contrary of the old. That was distinguished by every one of its articles being specially shabby and dirty—they will now have an emblem of spotless purity, and aristocratic pretension; Mr. Clay, in the belief that his time must have come now seems to have taken Falstaff's resolution, to 'purge and leave sack, and live cleanly, as a nobleman should do.' Truly the inclination shows some remains of decency—but we doubt if it will be more permanent than the 'fat Knight's.' But to the point.

In the last Baltimore American we find an article headed

'A NATIONAL EMBLEM—THE MAGNOLIA.'

It states that Mr. Hatch, of Vicksburg, gardener, lately sent as a present to Mr. Clay, certain trees of the genus Magnolia, species Makrophylla—which he accompanied with a note highly scented with the 'sweet smoke of rhetoric.' Among other things, Mr. Hatch says:

'It may not be inappropriate to add, that there is a peculiar aptitude in presenting you this tree. Like yourself it is purely American, and even in American soil, it has no prototype.

'The purity of its spotless bloom is an emblem of your reputation, and its unrivalled foliage but a type of your well earned honors.'

Mr. Clay's reply has nothing particular, except that he is very grateful, has planted the trees and they have taken. The Vicksburg Whig, delighted to find any live twig on which to hang the smallest hope for its party, remarks:

'Mr. Hatch has established the emblem of Henry Clay, which must hereafter be the American Magnolia, 'the purity of whose spotless bloom' is emblematic of his patriotism and purity of purpose, and whose 'unrivalled foliage is a type' of his well earned honors."

Mr. Hatch is felicitous in the selection of his points of resemblance—he confines himself to leaves and flowers. We are not [illegible] it is a beautiful tree—the graceful pyramid of its foliage, the tinsel glitter of the leaves, and the glory of its ostentatious bloom, makes it one of the finest of ornamental trees. But it bears no fruit, that even a bird can eat—it proudly shoots upward, stretching out no broad and comforting shelter for man and beast—its wood is worthless, will not do for fences, or boards, or shingles, or ships, or even walking sticks—it loses all weight in seasoning, and has no beauty or durability—it is even good for nothing as fire wood. The flower too, though so beautiful is dangerously poisonous, so much so that it cannot be safely kept in the house. The Magnolia is a tree then whose sole merit is the fine show it makes, affording little shade—its wood worthless its boughs without fruit—its blossoms poisonous. Will any tell us what sort of a politician is he whose fit emblem is the Magnolia?

MISSISSIPPI OAKS.—A correspondent of the Concordia (La) Intelligencer, thus writes of the large oaks that adorn the Mississippi coast:

'These trees growing so isolated, the sun and wind always upon them, and removed so far from any other object, are so immense in size and so vigorous in appearance, as scarcely to seem the same tree with those we see in the dense forests irregular and crooked, stinted by the shade and constrained in attitude by the encroachments of parvenue pines. One of these trees on the prairies of Opelousas will shield thousands of cattle from the heats of the noon-day sun.'

And then the teeming fruit which the skipping cheerful squirrel hoards up, which fattens the herds of swine, which gathers the wild pigeons in countless thousands to its feasts! Stand beneath its mighty shelter, and see how its sturdy arms arch above arch, stretch away in the solemn grandeur of an old cathedral! There is a tree for you!—But put it to the test—not a branch of it but is good for something—and bracing with its perdurable toughness the goodly bark, it bounds forth the joyous conqueror of the Ocean, the messenger of wealth, civilization and christianity.

The Magnolia is the true emblem of useless, pretending, showy, fastidious aristocracy. The Oak is the tree of the people.

'PECULIAR' CONSISTENCY.

'The course of the whig party has been PECULIARLY consistent.'

Such (says the Loram Republican) is the language of a federal sheet now before us. No one, certainly, will be so hard-hearted as to doubt the truth of their consistency is proverbial. Here are a few specimens 'for the public eye.'—

OUT OF OFFICE.	IN OFFICE.
1. They clamored about the 'extravagant' expenditures of government.	1. They increased these expenditures TEN MILLIONS per annum.
2. They clamored for a bankrupt act.	2. When passed they repealed it.
3. They attempted to charter a bank.	3. Their President vetoed it.
4. They clamored about long sessions of Congress.	4. They kept in session EIGHTEEN out of twenty-four months.
5. They clamored about the extravagance of the White House.	5 They appropriated thousands of dollars for more furniture.
6. They clamored about the issue of treasury notes.	6. They increased the issue to over 11 MILLIONS.
7. They clamored about blood hounds.	7. They re-appoint'd to office Gov. Call, of Florida, who originally purchased the blood hounds.
8. They clamored about a public debt.	8. They increased that debt from FIVE TO THIRTY MILLIONS.
9. They clamored about removals from office for opinion's sake.	9. They removed several thousand honest, efficient men from office for "opinion's sake."
10. They clamored about office holders interfering in elections.	10. Henry Clay and the whole clique of whig office-holders "stump it" yearly thro' the country.

WHAT HAVE THE WHIGS DONE?

What have the Whigs done since they came into power?

They have created a National Debt of about Forty millions.

They have made bankrupt the nation.

They have dishonored the country, and brought ruin, shame and disgrace upon their party.

They have killed one President, and endeavored to make another politically infamous.

They have quarrelled among themselves, and made their party the laughing stock of the whole country.

They have been 'mene, mene, tekel, uphar sin'—weighed in a balance and found wanting.

What have they not done?

They have not secured to the laboring man two dollars a day and roast beef.

They have not raised the wages of labor.

They have not regulated the Exchanges. (But they have become uniform in spite of them.)

They have not established a sound currency. (But it is growing sounder in spite of them.)

They have not given us the better times.

They have not raised the price of the farmers' produce.

They have not relieved the distress of the people.

They have not fulfilled a single promise made to the people before the last Presidential campaign.—Maine Age.

GETTING A PARDON.—A convict, named Green McDonald, was recently pardoned by Governor Shannon, of Ohio. The Cincinnati Sun says a fraud was practised to get him out of the penitentiary. Some time ago a petition was circulated inviting John Eyler to go to that city on a visit, to which the names of many distinguished citizens were attached. So soon as all the names were procured, the heading was taking off and a petition to Gov. Shannon for the pardon of Green McDonald put in its place. The [illegible] has much feeling.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRESS.

While the Generals of a victorious army are enjoying the fruits and honors of success, the subalterns and rank and file, by whose bravery and devotion victory was achieved, are too often forgotten. The Press during the recent laborious contest did good service in the cause, and the exertions of its conductors are certainly worthy of remembrance now that the end for which they labored in common with their party has been attained. We know by dear bought experience, that the publication of a Democratic paper in Indiana, has heretofore been a task of little ease and less profit. We presume that the experience of others has led to a similar conclusion. We are quite sure that this must be the case with those of our Democratic brethren who have been most zealous and single-hearted in their advocacy of the cause; for in proportion to their honest zeal in favor of Democratic principles and measures, must necessarily be the hostility of their Whig opponents towards them. These and other facts of like nature, which their own good sense will naturally suggest, should be taken into consideration by the Democratic party, and particularly by its politicians, who have the ability and influence to excite a just appreciation of this great means of usefulness and knowledge among the more thoughtless or less considerate. We do not speak, in this case, for ourselves any more than for our contemporaries of the Democratic press generally. All, doubtless, need aid and assistance, and all would far more than repay for it by the increased ability it would afford them in the advocacy and dissemination of correct doctrines. The present is a most favorable time for an effort to be made of this kind; we hope it will not be suffered to pass by unimproved, and our presses be permitted to linger out, as too many of them have been fated to do heretofore, a miserable and sickly existence, of no benefit to any body, and ruinous to their conductors.

THE FIGHTING CLERGYMAN OF TENNESSEE.—In a late Tennessee paper, of which the Rev. Mr. Brownlow is editor, the following "card" appears. The Reverend gentleman talks plain, that's certain:

A CARD.—While seated in my house writing, disturbing no man, and without any knowledge of any quarrelling going on, Mr. Garland was called on as I understand, by L. C. Haynes, to send me down to him, to meet him in combat, I suppose, in the street. I once called on that base, cowardly puppy, in a manly and honorable way, and he refused to fight, but lied like a dog, in that he denied having any weapons. I must decline the honor of paying him a second visit—but on the ground that "one good turn deserves another," he ought to call on me.—This would be turn about, and of course fair play

I now, as heretofore, pronounce Mr. Haynes a liar, a villain and a coward; having no other backers in Jonesborough than a set of liars and rascals, and the decendants of thieves.

And this I intend as personal to all who consider themselves his backers.

WILLIAM G. BROWNLOW.

The Whig Methodist Parson—a droll fellow and not a little of a bruiser—who edits the Jonesboro (Ten.) Whig, adviseth all men of the success of his party in that State in the following edifying terms;

TEN HUNDRED THOUSAND CHEERS FOR THE NOBLE WHIG STATE OF TENNESSEE!!!

Attention the world, till the news of the Tennessee election is given! O ye inhabitants of this wide earth, stretch wide your eyes and look at Tennessee, while she stops the onward march of that Locofoco ball!—Heads erect!—Right foot seven feet in rear of the left, to act as a brace!—Hands raised as high as they can reach, with fingers spread wide apart!—Mouths spread wide open to catch the accents!—Faces turned towards Old Kentuck, with backs upon South Carolina!—Eyes "a feet" apart, squinting towards Louisiana and Maine!—Keeping time with the feet, after the fashion of the 'Rogue's March,' while the leaders of Misrule in Tennessee, work their way up Salt River!!!

THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT TO VIRGINIA.—By the Norfolk Beacon, we learn that President Tyler on Saturday visited the Navy Yard at Gosport, the United States ships Pennsylvania and Levant, lying in the harbor, and also the steam frigate Missouri, at each of which visits he was of course received with the military honors due to his station. He afterwards visited the borough of Norfolk, and partook of a splendid collation provided on the occasion. Mr. Cushing, the minister to China, was present, and responded to a complimentary toast in a speech of some length, which is highly spoken of. 'We were particularly pleased,' says the Beacon, 'by the happy manner in which Mr. Cushing alluded to the great good feeling existing between France and this country. The part that generous nation took in our great struggle for freedom was described with eloquence. In introducing Capt. Duveyrier to those present, he appeared to remember with particular pleasure and pride the great interest which his uncle General Count Mollis fought under the American banner during the whole of that memorable contest,' &c. 'Not being able to speak the English language fluently, Mr. Cushing responded for him.'—The President after dinner with a private party, embarked on board the Missouri, by which vessel he was landed at Old Point Comfort in the evening.

The last Miller Story.—The following anecdote from the Knickerbocker will do to read immediately after dinner:—Cin. Gaz.

A matter-of-fact old gentleman in New England, whose wife was a thorough going 'Destructionist,' was awakened out of his sleep by his 'possessed rib, one cold and stormy March night, with 'Husband! did you hear that noise? It's Gabriel a-coming! It's the sound of his chariot wheels!' 'Oh, pshaw you old fool!' replied the gude man, 'do you 'spose Gabriel is such an ass as to come on wheels, in such good sleighing as this? I tell you it's the wind; turn over and go to sleep!' We believe she did.

NOVEL METHOD OF MAKING SALT.—We are informed that in digging one of the salt wells on Kanawha, a vein of carburetted hydrogen (inflammable) gas was struck, and that the gas comes up in large quantities, mixed with the salt water.

The proprietor has contrived to separate the gas from the water, and while the water is conveyed into the boilers through one set of pipes, the gas is conveyed in another set under the boilers, where it is inflamed, and evaporates the water. Thus the same well yields the water to make salt, and the fuel to evaporate it.

We are informed that salt is actually manufactured at this well, at the net cost of two cents per bushel. If nature continues to yield this double product, this well will be worth more than a silver mine.—Cincinnati Chron.

NEW MODE OF MAKING SOAP.—The Westminster Carroltonian mentions the manufacture of a barrel of Soap by Mrs. Moul, of that town, without the aid of fire. The whole process of change from ley to soap is affected by the heat of the sun, without any trouble. It must be regarded as an economical improvement on the old process.

We know of an economical housewife in this city who has been in the habit for many years of manufacturing in the manner above indicated, all the soft soap she required for household purposes. The process is exceedingly simple, it being only necessary to use an old barrel as a ley-hopper, and draw off every now and then a bucket of ley which is poured upon the grease, that should be placed in another barrel and set in a position where it is exposed to the rays of the sun, but to be covered over in rainy weather. In this manner, with the aid of occasional stirring, the soap will be fit for use in a few weeks. One barrel of ashes and four lbs. of rendered fat will make a barrel of soap It is not necessary, however, to rend up the fat, as it may be thrown into the barrel in any state, and will be consumed by the ley

PHOSPHORESCENCE IN THE LIVING BODY. Mr. G. F. Collier relates in the Lancet of June 10th, 1843, a curious example of this. It occurred in a man 43 years of age, of full stature, robust, herculean strength, and was for some time annoyed with psoriasis of the palms. He is a gross feeder, extremely fond of fat meat, in the use of which he indulges very extensively. For several days prior to his skin becoming phosphorescent, he had been indulging in the use of grossly fat food to an extent exceeding his usual habit, and had been taking large quantities of lemon juice, his own remedy for psoriasis. He is very temperate in the use of fermented liquors, and seldom takes spirits. He had been reading late, as he was wont to do, and on retiring, he had clothed the head of a chair with his shirt instead of throwing it over the chair back. On getting into bed he saw to his surprise a blaze, or halo, of phosphorescence, representing the headless trunk of a human body, at the foot of the bed, where he had disposed his appearel. His curiosity being excited, he got out of bed, and after approaching and handling the shirt, he was induced to examine his own skin. He found his arms and chest in the same luminous state. When the phosphorescence faded on the linen, friction restored it. The phenomenon continued for several days, and has since recurred on the same error of diet.

HOW STANDS THE IRISH REPEAL?—It is manifest from the tenor of the foreign news by the Hibernia and Great Western, that Ireland still continues in a state of almost revolutionary agitation.

O'Connell is still the storm King. He is not only raising the tempest, but from the confident manner of all his speeches he evinces a perfect confidence that he can control the storm as he pleases. It is gratifying to add that it seems to be his rigid determination to obtain the establishment of an Irish Parliament, peaceably and according to law. In this respect he shows a clear head, infinitely above the sagacity of demagogues, in not under-estimating the immense power of Public Opinion.

If O'Connell rigidly adheres to this commanding line of conduct, we have not a doubt of the final success of the repeal movement. It cannot fail. The civilized world will feel more sensitively than ever that Ireland is right; and the English Parliament will finally yield to the power of a public opinion which is resistless, because it is based on right, and which though firm and unyielding, is not denunciatory or anarchial, but law abiding.

It may be asked, how feel the English ministry? Sir Robert Peel is evidently frightened—his enemies say paralyzed. His tory supporters seem to be falling off, for Wellington and Lindhurst appear to be constantly urging coercive measures forthwith, to put down a mere excitement lest it may merge in rebellion. These inveterate tories who care no more for the people than they do for their hounds, are supported by the apostate Brougham.—Albany Argus.

GEN. CASS IN FRANCE.—We make the following extract from Mr. Walsh's Paris correspondence of the National Intelligencer dated August 1, 1843:

'It may not annoy Gen. Cass to be informed, in my way, that he is remembered (which speaks much in itself) by all the members of the Royal circle, the Ministers and a number of the persons, including the diplomatic corps, whose recollection he would chiefly prize. Their enquiries, fraught with esteem and kindness, extend to the ladies of his family, who preceded him home. It is truly said that the best part of life is in the domestic affections;—we might add, the next best is in social regards worthily earned. In April last, the Minister of Public Instruction, in a note which he had occasion to write me, requested the transmission of his cordial and constant respect to the General.

Billings, the man who committed such extensive forgeries in Utica and thereabouts, has been arrested. Some persons connected with the Chenango Bank came on here in pursuit of him, and put officer Smith on the track. He traced the rogue to the Falls, and thence down the lake and river to Quebec, where he arrested him, and had him committed to await a requisition from Governor Bouck.—English Cam.

TO HOUSEWIVES.—Recent experiments in more than one family in this city, says the Delaware Gazette, have established that the plant known to botanists as the Polygonum Punctatum, commonly called water pepper or smart weed, and which may be found in great abundance along ditches, roads, lanes, and barn yards, is an effectual and certain destroyer of bedbugs. It is said to exercise the same poisonous effect on the flea. A strong decoction is made of the herb, and the places infested with the insect are carefully washed therewith.

A BATHING PREDICAMENT.—On Monday morning a gentleman and his lady, on a visit to the far famed bathing town of Redcar, Yorkshire, not satisfied with the restriction and forms attendant on bathing from a machine, started early in the morning in their phaeton to a favorable spot two miles up the sands, the lady providing herself with a bathing dress, the gentleman, as gentlemen generally do when bathing, declining such encumbrances. After undressing on the sand, and placing their clothing in the carriage, they took to the water, but had scarcely recovered from their first 'dip,' when to their dismay they observed the horse start at a smart trot with the carriage, dresses and all, leaving them in the primitive state of our first parents. After some time it was arranged for the lady to proceed to Marsque, where she arrived barefoot and barebead, and after relating the unfortunate but laughable account of the horse, succeeded in borrowing a dress for herself and husband, which was forwarded in all speed; and he was soon recognized by the messenger, patiently enduring his woful plight, though up to the chin in water.—Cheltenham Examiner.

Birdnesting Extraordinary—Fortunate Escape.—About the 25th ult. a lad named Gregory, 12 years of age, an inmate of the West London Union House, at Edmunton, England, conceived the idea of robbing a sparrow's nest which was made in the brick work at the top of one of the chimneys of the building. To accomplish his exceedingly hazardous intention the little fellow had to make his way through a strong iron grating the bars of which were placed so close together that it would be considered almost impossible to pass the head of an infant through, but he nevertheless managed, by some extraordinary workings and exertions of the body to squeeze through. He had to climb up to the top of a chimney six feet high, unaided by any other means than that which his hands and feet afforded him; and this he, with wonderful dexterity, accomplished. Seated on the chimney top he drew from the nest three young sparrows, and carefully put them in his bosom, and was about to descend with his prize, when unfortunately the brickwork gave way and he fell to the ground, a distance no less than 44 feet. Some of the inmates seeing the accident, rushed to the spot, expecting to find the young adventurer smashed to pieces, but to their great surprise and pleasure they found him able to get upon his legs, and only complained of an injury of one of his arms. His anxiety for the safety of the young sparrows seemed greater than his injuries, and he was quite delighted that they received no injury. He was examined by the surgeon of the Union, who found his arm fractured, but with the exception of this and a few slight bruises, he had received no further injury. The young sufferer has since been an object of curiosity to all who have viewed the scene of the exploits.

DELUGE IN NEW YORK.

The New York papers state that that city has been deluged with rain, which began to fall on Monday evening and continued until Tuesday noon. The Journal of Commerce of Tuesday, 2, A. M. says:

Since the days of old Noah, Senior, we know not when our city has been visited with such a deluge of rain as poured down between midnight last night and eight o'clock this morning. During this whole period the rain was increasing, and the greater part of the time it fell in torents. Three tube which stood on a pier extending into the North River, were filled to the depth of eleven inches and a quarter; nearly all of which fell in the course of eight hours.

Our streets presented the appearance of rivers. Hundreds of cellars were filled with water; but the damage occasioned thereby is less than might be supposed, from the fact that most of the goods had been removed.—In the upper part of the city several houses were partially undermined, and considerable injury was occasioned by guttleying. In various places the fire engines are employed in clearing the basement rooms and cellars of water. We fear we shall hear of extensive damage in the country: Indeed it can be hardly otherwise.

A FACT FOR THE PEOPLE.—We notice, in the West Chester Record, that Mr. Macartney, of that borough, has made an ingenious improvement, by which bootmakers, in place of the present tedious process of boot crimping, can be able to crimp boot-legs composed of leather of the most unyielding nature in a few minutes.

THE QUESTION NOT SETTLED.—An exchange paper says that the question, 'May a man marry his wife's sister?' can only be properly answered by the sister herself, when the widower pops the question.

A REMARKABLE INSTANCE OF ACCIDENTAL RECOGNITION occurred, according to the "Elliston Papers," in North Britain, in 1793. Mrs. Cross of Covent Garden Theatre, was, in that year, acting in Glasgow, and on one occasion the Provost being present, the lady had no sooner made her appearance on the Stage, than the agitated functionary exclaimed, "Stop—stop the play 'and' would speak with that woman!" Great was the consternation throughout the auditory at this highly dramatic emeute, and the curtain being immediately lowered; the perturbed Provost made his way at once into the actress's dressing room. After a few hurried words, he discovered her to be his own wife, from whom he had been separated for nearly twenty years. Each had supposed the other dead! The magistrate, hereupon, bore off the lady, arm in arm, to his own house; and the next evening she took her place in front of the theatre, amongst the patronesses of the art, where she was quite as much a heroine as when sustaining the walks of Cullen herself.

FORT WAYNE SENTINEL.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1843

FOR PRESIDENT
MARTIN VAN BUREN.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT
RICHARD M. JOHNSON.
(Subject to the decision of a National Convention.)

☞ By divine permission the Rev. Mr. LAIRD, of the Protestant Episcopal Communion will perform Religious Services on Sunday, 24th inst (to-morrow) at the Court House at the usual hours.

☞ The Rev. MICHAEL EDGAR SHAWE, Catholic Missionary, is now in Fort Wayne, and will lecture on Sunday next, the 24th inst at early candle light, and during the ensuing week.

The article in our paper of the 2d inst. on the subject of selecting state officers from amongst democrats residing out of Indianapolis, has been noticed by the Lawrenceburgh Beacon, the Lafayette Standard, and the State Sentinel. These papers all agree with us in the general principle, but think an exception ought to be made in favor of Mr. Palmer for Treasurer. The Standard and Sentinel think our opposition to Mr. Palmer may be owing to the circumstance of there being some person here desirous of the office. In this they are mistaken. We are not aware that any person here is seeking the nomination, nor have we heard the name of any one suggested. Our only motive was a desire to have a complete and radical change: to have all our state offices filled by men fully competent to discharge their duties—who should be selected on account of their qualifications, rather than from having formerly held office. Rotation in office we consider the true democratic doctrine. We had no other objection to Mr. Palmer; he has been a faithful and efficient public servant; and if our friends generally think him the most competent man in our ranks for the responsible office of Treasurer of State, and deem it advisable to again avail themselves of his services, we shall cheerfully acquiesce. Our design in penning the article was to elicit an expression of the public feeling on the subject, that the Legislature might act accordingly.

We have heard many remarks from persons visiting Indianapolis, not at all favorable to the characters of the juntos of office-holders and office-seekers there.—This feeling appears to be shared equally by both parties. From the tone of the remarks in the State Sentinel we think they have misunderstood our feelings on this subject. If their object be to aid Mr. Palmer they are pursuing a wrong course. We, in common with the democratic editors in all parts of the State, feel equally interested in a proper selection of officers, with the editors of the State Sentinel, and claim the right of freely expressing our views and our preferences. Any thing like dictation from Indianapolis will not assuage the feeling which exists against the cliques and juntos at that city.

Mr. Powell's theatrical company left here on Thursday last for Lafayette, to the favorable notice of the citizens of which place we beg to recommend them, as fully deserving their patronage. Mr. Powell and his company have made many friends here, as well by their talents as performers, as by their correct and gentlemanly conduct as citizens. He received a tolerable support while here, but the amount he was compelled to pay for county and city licences, we are sorry to say, totally consumed his profits, and we much doubt if he took a cent more from the place than he brought in.

We think the law imposing a tax for the benefit of the county of $5 on each evening's performance, in addition to the city license, is unjust and oppressive, and ought to be repealed or modified. We do not think that good theatrical performances ought to be suppressed, yet the heavy tax levied on them almost amounts to a prohibition, especially in the smaller towns. It would be better to take off the county license and make the amount to be charged discretionary with the authorities of the city or town where they propose to exhibit. In this way, whatever amount was levied would be received by the citizens of the place, who in fact pay it; and if they thought a company deserving of countenance and support they could reduce the amount of the license, so as to enable the poor player to pocket a fair share of his hard earnings, instead of, as at present, filching from him the greater part in the shape of a county license.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE ROADS.—We are pleased to notice that the interest felt on this subject continues unabated. Meetings have been held at several places on the line of the Northern roads, and all manifest a design to co-operate with our citizens in their laudable design. At Kendallville, Noble Co. 200 days' work was subscribed. Mr. Wm. Mitchell has been appointed commissioner on the Mongoquinong Road, and has signified his intention of proceeding immediately to the execution of his trust. It is now getting rather late in the season, and we hope no time will be lost in putting the work under contract. We have strong hopes that we shall, ere long, have good roads.

Daily mail from Toledo to Lafayette.—We perceive by the Lafayette, Defiance and Toledo papers that the movement made here in favor of a Daily mail along the line of the Wabash and Erie Canal meets the approbation of the citizens of those places, and that preparations are making to second our exertions. This is as it should be. A boon of such obvious necessity and justice to the citizens of a rapidly improving country cannot, we think, be denied, if our claims are properly presented to the head of the Post Office Department.

New York State Convention:—The Democratic state convention assembled at Syracuse, N. Y. on the 5th inst. Wm. E. Marcy was appointed President. The convention decided by a vote of 103 to 19 against electing delegates by the district system. Resolutions were adopted unanimously, in favor of Martin Van Buren for President, and instructing their delegates to vote for him at the Baltimore Convention. All is right in the Empire state; and the whigs who have been flattering themselves that the Little Dutchman could not get the vote of his own state—that dissentions existed among the democrats as is the choice of their candidate, &c.—will now see that they were 'puffed up with an artificial delusion.' New York is entitled to 36 votes. Present appearances indicate that Van Buren will be our next President. So mote it be.

AUDITOR OF STATE.

We learn that Amzi L. Wheeler Esq. of Marshall County, her late popular and able Representative, will be a candidate for the office of Auditor of Public Accounts. Mr. Wheeler's qualifications are undoubted.

Horatio J. Harris Esq. of Delphi, late Senator from Carroll, is also a candidate and will be warmly supported by his friends.

A new Auditor will be chosen beyond a doubt, and as the office is one of great responsibility and difficulty, the Democracy owe it to themselves and to the people of the State, to make such a selection as will subserve the public good. A man of experienced business habits, of close application, of untiring industry, can alone fill the office with credit to himself or profit to the State. There are many men in the Democratic ranks as competent as Mr. Morris, and it is time the principle of rotation was applied to him. He has wielded an immense influence against us, and it is time to turn the tables. —Goshen Democrat.

FORT WAYNE ROAD.—Is it not time for the citizens of Elkhart to second the movements of Fort Wayne in improving the road leading to that city? The road through the Elkhart bottom from Benton to Shobe's, is execrable; and yet the ground is good all the way. At some seasons of the year, it is almost impassable. It is time, certainly, for the south part of the county to make a movement. If we wish to secure the trade of Noble county, and bring the western travel through Elkhart county, we must at least have roads that are Jackassable. What do you say to a meeting at Benton on that subject? Will the Benton boys start the ball?—Goshen Democrat.

THE HARVEST.—The Democratic harvest is coming in rich. The Whig crop is almost entirely winterkilled on account of there being so much Clay in the soil. In Louisiana they say Clay lands will be entirely abandoned by agriculturists. The sickly yield from such a soil in our neighborhood is mostly cheat, chess or smut. Farmers know their interests too well to attempt to embark their labor on such bottoms.—Chicago Democrat.

VOTE IN INDIANA.

The whole number of votes polled at the recent election in this state was 121,099; as follows:

For Whitcomb	60.714
For Bigger	58.701
For Demming (abolition)	1.685
Total	121,099

Whitcomb's majority over Bigger is 2,013
His majority of all the votes given is 329.

In 1840, the whole number of votes polled was 117.306; as follows:

For Bigger	63.006
For Howard	54.397
Total	117,306

From the above it will be seen that the number of votes polled this year is greater than that of any former year, being 3,793 more than in 1840. It will also be seen that the Democrat vote has increased 9,117 since 1840, whilst the Whig vote has fallen off 4,308, in the same time.

VERMONT ELECTION.

The returns of votes for Governor from 118 towns, give 13,259 for Kellogg, (Dem.) 15 384 for Mattocks, (Whig) and 2,112 for Williams [Abolition) and scattering. The following counties and parts of counties, have been heard from:

		Kellogg.	Mattocks	Williams and scattering
Windsor,	22 towns,	2,335	3,649	547
Windham,	14 "	1,429	1,813	214
Rutland,	11 "	761	1,667	135
Addison,	8 "	437	975	62
Orange,	8 "	1.318	983	297
Franklin,	9 "	1,037	1,292	143
Washington	15 "	2 039	1 394	156
Caledonia,	15 "	1,681	1,598	137
Chittenden,	4 "	619	803	77
Orleans,	4 "	370	434	40
Lamoile,	5 "	661	285	270
Bennington,	3 "	582	591	35
	118 towns,	13,259	15.384	2,112
			15,371

Mattock's majority thus far is only 13

He is probably defeated in the State.

The Legislature will probably stand better for the democrats than it did last year. In 121 towns, which last year chose 43 democrats, 73 whigs, and 1 abolitionist, to the House, the democrats this year have 48, the whigs 59, abolitionists 3—and of these towns, 11 have made no choice.

FORGERY.

The Massachusetts Gazette contains an account of an astounding forgery, in the sum of $41,000 just brought to light. The forgery was perpetrated by William Goddard, Postmaster at Petersham, Massachusetts. Goddard has been arrested.

N. B. Goddard, it seems, has received $40,000 in cash from his forgeries, and is held to bail in the sum of $5000. He has, therefore, only to run away, to make a speculation of $35.000.

The Maumee River Times says—

'There is nothing that Locofocoism touches that it does not destroy.'—It has been laying its deadly fingers upon the "coons" of Louisiana and the 'Banner State.' It will have a 'touch' at the 'universal coon party' next year; and it wont leave enough of it to make a 'grease spot!' There may be a little coarse fun found, here and there, after the contest of 1844, but that will be all.—Baltimore Telegraph.

Elected as above	143
Total members	223—last Congress, 242.

Of the 80 members yet to be chosen, the Whigs may possibly get 28, which would make their total number 66, or less than one third of the whole House. On the other hand, the Whigs will have a small majority in the Senate, which is now full with the exception of four members, viz: two from Tennessee, one from Maryland, and one from Illinois. Parties now stand in that body, 26 Whigs, including Mr. Rives of Virginia, who will vote without much reference to party interests, and 22 Democrats. The 4 Senators yet to be elected, will probably be divided two and two; so that after their election, parties in that body will be divided as at present, giving the Whigs a majority of four including Mr. Rives.

SEIZURE OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.—A London Correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser writes as follows concerning the recent seizure of the Sandwich Islands by a Naval officer of the British Government:

'Hardly a doubt now remains that the British Government, will immediately and formally disavow the military occupancy of the Sandwich Islands—an event which will be instantly followed by a formal recognition of their independence on the part of France and very possibly a joint guarantee of that independence by the great powers. This government has already appointed a consul general for these Islands, who will shortly proceed to his post. A greater tissue of villainy and misrepresentation than that which induced Lord George Paulet's violent course has seldom been concocted in the world, and would have been quite impossible without the aid of a little European civilization.'

A Monster.—We learn from an English paper that a gentleman travelling along the road near Coldbrook, had his attention attracted to the screams of a child in the care of a tramping woman, who had two other children totally blind also with her. The cries of the child were so distressing that he insisted on knowing the cause, but not getting a satisfactory answer, he forcibly removed the bandage from its eyes, when horrid to relate, found them encased with two small perforated shells, in which were two beetles for the purpose of destroying the sight. The woman was instantly seized and given into custody, and at the Magistrates meeting at Eaton committed for trial. There is too much reason to fear that the wretch produced the blindness of the other two children by a similar means.

FOREIGN NEWS.

TEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Britannia, Capt. Hewitt, arrived at Boston on Saturday morning, with dates from Liverpool to the afternoon of the 19th ult., and London to the 18th. The markets, generally seem to have improved

Parliament has been unusually busy in discussing and acting upon various questions of interest. In the debate on Irish affairs, Lord Brougham spoke of the speeches of "a person named Tyler, said to be the son of the Accidental President of the United States," but passed them over by saying that no one was answerable for the fooleries, the excessive fooleries, of his family. He refused to believe that President Tyler was the author of the Repeal letter published over his name.

A spirited debate was had upon the Washington Treaty as connected with the surrender of fugitive slaves. The Attorney General gave his opinion that they could not be surrendered. Lord Palmerston made a very able speech on the affairs of Servia, into which he wove a fierce assault on the Government. Mr. D'Israeli followed in the same strain, and took the house by surprise with a speech of great ability and independence. In the debates upon the state of Irish affairs the do nothing policy of the Government has been attacked with great bitterness.

Parliament was to be prorogued by the Queen in person on the 24th ult.

In Wales, the disturbances still continue. Some concession has been made to the demands of the disaffected, but this seems only to increase the discontent.

In Ireland, the Repeal agitation continues with unabated zeal and success. The greatest gathering that has yet been held, took place on Tara Hill, a place remarkable in Irish history, on the festival of the Assumption.

Mr. Dennis John Blake, recently dismissed from the Customs, has been arrested on a charge of having defrauded the government to the amount of $320,000. He had recently retired to a fine estate in Dublin.

Letters have been received by O'Connell and read at the Repeal Meetings, from sympathisers in France, offering aid and shelter, if it shall be needed, to the Repealers of Ireland.

The dismissal of Justices still continues.

A riot occurred at a fair near Galway, on the 1st ult. Two persons were killed by the firing of the police, and several others were badly wounded.

IRELAND.—The Repeal cause continues to advance manifestly. The greatest meeting of Repealers which has yet taken place was held at Tara Hill, on Assumption Day, August 15th, a great festival in the Catholic Calendar. Religious ceremonies preceded the meeting. An English paper says:—O'Connell's speech was in his best style—more earnest and impassioned and less flippant than usual.

"I feel," exclaimed he, "the awful responsibility to my country and my Creator which the part I have taken in this great movement imposes upon me." This speech is more remarkable, however, for the deep and subdued spirit of earnestness which marked it, than for anything novel or striking. This meeting has excited greater alarm on this side of the water connected, with the repeal movement, than any former one—or indeed all put together. The London 'Times' has the most desponding article which has yet appeared in its columns on this now alarming subject of repeal. A crisis, it is admitted on all hands, is not distant. The following account of the meeting, which is extremely interesting is by a correspondent writing under date of Dublin, August 15.

The greatest meeting, in point of numbers, enthusiasm, and importance, which ever took place in this, or perhaps any other country, was held to-day at the famous Hill of Tara. I have just returned from it, most deeply impressed with the conviction (in opposition to my previous views) that the Imperial Parliament has now to choose between full redress of Irish grievances, the Repeal of the Union, or civil war. I feel assured, too, that unless the first be very soon granted, fully and freely, one of the last two will be the only alternative.

O'Connell left Dublin at nine this morning, followed by two hundred carriages, and proceeded in procession, with banners, olive branches, blind harpers, &c., to the Hill of Tara, eighteen miles distant. Nearly every conveyance had been engaged for weeks previous, and it was with great difficulty that I succeeded in procuring a seat in a 'jaunting car' an hour later. The entire distance of eighteen Irish miles was one continued chain of vehicles of every description from coronetted carriages, barouches, cars, carts, drays, &c., down to the stout pair of pedal supporters with which every Irishman is well provided. Very many had left Dublin the night before on foot; some came from a distance of fifty miles, but all pressed eagerly forward to the hill. The road sides were lined with aged men, women and children, all wearing green branches, and rending the air with cheers and shouts for Repeal!

Our vehicle could not get within two miles of the hill, both sides of the road beyond being filled with unharnessed horses and cars. We walked on through the dense masses of people, pouring onward, and bearing us along in their tide, but all peaceful and sober and remembering the sentiment, which waved on many banners, that the "the man who commits a crime, gives strength to the enemy." A triumphal arch bore the inscription, 'we hail, with joy, Ireland's Liberator;' and another claimed 'Ireland for the Irish, and the Irish for Ireland.'

On nearing the platform, the mass of people, extending over the various summits, as far as the eye could reach, and estimated to number, at least five hundred thousand, became almost impenetrable; but, at length, half crushed and suffocated, I came within sight and hearing of O'Connell, who stood before me, with his high forehead half hidden by his travelling cap, and his massive features quivering with excitement, as he poured forth, with solemn and thrilling earnestness, the torrent of his fiery indignation against the Saxon oppressors.

The scene alone was excitement enough. Here was the ancient palace of Ireland's original kings. Here was the spot where they were elected, and here the native chieftains bound themselves, by all the pledges of honor and religion, to defend their country against the stranger. Here, in 'Teamor of the Kings,' was Christianity first preached to the monarchs; and here, on this day, held sacred by Catholics, as the Ascension of the Virgin, were the rites of their religion performed.

More recent, and yet more stirring associations, are here. In the eventful '98, here was a fierce battle, and here are the rude entrenchments, and in their midst the mound beneath, which are buried, in one grave, a hundred massacred Irishmen, whose remains, I was there told, (but for the honor of human nature, I would fain disbelieve it,) the command of the British army at first ordered to be given to his hounds! At the head of their grave stands the 'Lia Fail,' or stone of destiny, on which were crowned the ancient Kings of Ireland; a false one having been sent to Scotland, and thence to England.

What scenes could more strikingly arouse the passions of Irishmen? An adventure of my own among them, to-day, will give you a faint idea of their enthusiasm. I had penetrated the crowd around the "Croppie's Grave.'

Upon it were kneeling the friends of the murdered, praying for the souls of the departed; and as they arose and brushed the drops from their eyes, others would take their places. Stern faces surrounded the spot, and among them was one who wore the fragments of a hat which had been destroyed on the very spot in '98. Is not the boldness of his avowal a strong symptom? My appearance made me a marked object among the frize coats, and I heard mutters about the 'Saxon.' To quiet them, I told the apparent leader that I was not an Englishman, but an American. His whole face lighted up, and exclaiming, 'An American is it? Welcome to Ireland, sir,'—he turned to the lowering throng and cried, 'Boys, here is an American—three cheers for him.'

The cheers were most heartily given, with uptost hats, and he continued—'He is from America, the only free country in the world; three times three!' and again their shouts rang out. 'Clear away the grave,' he then said, 'and let the American gentleman see it. Please to walk over it, sir. It is ten yards long, and here are thrown in a hundred fine boys, murdered by Saxon treachery.' I complied with his request, and as I was then endeavouring to escape, he said, 'Might I make bould to ask leave to take your hand, sir, before you go?' I of course gave it, and they all then pressed forward to shake hands, thrusting their hands over each other's heads, and saying, 'Welcome to auld Ireland, sir. Welcome to Ireland. We have rough hands, but warm hearts.' Again they gave three times three cheers, and the distant groups catching the sound, re-echoed the shouts, till the whole hill of Tara resounded with cheers for America.

It would be more prudent to shake a torch over a barrel of gunpowder than to excite such material. O'Connell was wiser. He made no appeal to their passions, but there on the ancient seat of Ireland's power, forcibly, but calmly, declared the Union a nullity—void in principle, and in constituted law. He declared it null, because no authority was vested in the Legislature to pass the act of Union.

He adjured them to act peacably and quietly, but firmly, determinedly. He laughed at the Duke of Wellington's threats, and said that, brave as the army was, 'Ireland, roused as she now is, could, if they made war on us, furnish women enough to beat the Queen's forces.'

He announced the appointment of Repeal magistrates and arbitrators to settle, without expense, the disputes of the people, without employing the government officers. This will be a very pregnant movement. His last word said most truly that, 'Here are thousands of persons assembled with force enough to carry any battle that ever was fought, and yet they separate with the tranquility of schoolboys breaking up in the afternoon.'

Such is the brief but comprehensive abstract of his speech, but no words can express the reception by the multitude. Far as eye could reach, was a sea of heads, upturned to the 'Liberator,' eager for the sounds which his stentorian voice spread around. At every pause, shout after shout made the earth quake, and he might well say that they were 'enough to recall to life the Kings and Chiefs of old Ireland.'

They parted peacably and joyfully. Not one did I see drunk; not one used his shillagh; they met and parted by the hundreds, like a band of brothers.

A BANK ROBBERY IN BOSTON.—The Boston Transcript notices an ingenious bank robbery which came to light in that city on Tuesday week. It seems, says the Transcript, that 'on the 15th ult, two packages of $17,000 each, in bills on the Mulbury Bank were sent to that Bank by the Suffolk Bank in Boston, and charged to their account of depositee. On Monday, a large quantity of the Bulbury bills came to the Suffolk Bank, so as to exceed the deposite of the former in the latter; and the Milbury Bank was accordingly notified to redeem the balance. The directors of the latter, deeming it impossible that any great quanity of their circulation could come into the Market, did not take immediate measures for such a contingency. But as the bills did continue to flow into the market more rapidly than was thought consonant with the safety of the Bank, the Suffolk refused to redeem them, and notice was accordingly given to that effect in the papers. On Monday afternoon an express was sent up to Millbury, in order to ascertain the cause of the Bank being dishonored. The cashier said it was impossible that the bills could have got into the market to the extent named; and the first movement was to examine the two $17,000 packages, which still lay untouched in the vault of the Bank One of these packages contained what it purported to contain, namely, $17.000 in good bills, but from the other, the whole $17,000 had been ingeniously extracted, and brown paper, with the ends nicely cut off, substituted in place of the money!'

DIED,—On Saturday evening last, aged 26 years, Mrs. MARY ELLEN SMITH, wife of Mr. B. Smith, of this city.

The Hon. Nathaniel West, of Indianapolis, died at Salem, Mass. at the residence of his father-in-law, the Hon. [illegible]

DIED, On Monday the 18th inst. suddenly, of Inflammation of the Lungs, THOMAS JOHNSON, Esq. Attorney at Law, in the 37th year of his age. To note with proper comment the demise of good men, while due to the memory of the dead, is not less so to the living, as the virtues of the departed may be to them a theme of profitable contemplation. The history of Mr. Johnson affords much that is worthy of example to all, but especially may the younger portion of community—the young man just starting in the world—find, in this case, an additional assurance that perseverance and integrity will be crowned with success. Mr. J. was a native of Pennsylvania, his father and family removing at an early day to Belmont co. Ohio, where he commenced the study of Law. In 1832 he was admitted to practice in the several courts of this State, in Wayne county, thus identifying himself with the interests of the west—a poor young man—his reliance, his own resources—he soon after removed to this town, where by his unbending integrity and industry, he has attained an honorable competence, and a high place in public estimation. Courteous and gentlemanly in his deportment—generous and charitable towards the failings of others—he had no enemies, but was esteemed by all who knew him. As a Lawyer he was faithful to his clients—had an extensive practice in this Circuit—was eminent in his profession;—and it need scarcely be added that his loss to the Bar of this county, and as a citizen, is one which will be deeply felt, and that his memory will long be held in grateful remembrance.—COM.

HUNTINGTON, Tuesday Morning, September 19th, 1843.

D. H. Colerick, Esq., announced in an appropriate manner to the Court and bar in open Court that Thomas Johnson, Esq. one of the Attorneys of said Court, late of the city of Fort Wayne, had departed this life on yesterday at said city, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, A. M. and thereupon the court adjourned until one o'clock of the same day: in the interim of which adjournment, the Bar met with a view of taking the necessary steps to express the deep sense of their respect for the memory of their deceased brother, and of condolence with his bereaved family: whereupon Henry Cooper, Esq. of said city was called to the chair, and Lucien P. Ferry chosen secretary; and thereupon upon motion David H. Colerick, William H. Coombs, and James R. Slack, Esqrs. were by the chair appointed a committee to draw up resolutions in furtherance of the object of the meeting.

D. H. Colerick, Esq. chairman of said committee, then reported the following resolutions and recommended their adoption:

Resolved, That in the death of our departed brother, the bar has lost one of its most useful and honorable members—one in whose integrity it put unlimited confidence—and who in the excitement of forensic conflict was distinguished for his calm and subdued forbearance, and when he had occasion to rebuke aggression it was tempered with dignity—and whose generous heart was too noble to give a resting place within its pure precincts to envy or malice. As a citizen he was plain and unassuming in his manners, pure and incorruptible in his moral attributes and generous to a fault; and as a husband, a father, and a brother, he was all that impersonates and makes admirable the spheres of those economical relations.

Resolved, That the members of the Court and bar of the 12th Judicial circuit of the state of Indiana do now tender their unfeigned condolence to the family of our deceased brother for their irreparable loss, trusting that 'He who tempers the wind' will assuage their grief and assuring them that we deeply and truly sympathise with them in their affliction.

Resolved, That the members of the court be requested, and that the bar will wear a badge of mourning on the left arm for the period of thirty days as a token of respect to the memory of our deceased brother.

Resolved, That the proceedings in this behalf be entered on the Order Book of the Huntington Circuit Court, published in the Times and Sentinel of said city, and a copy thereof be sent to the relations of the deceased.

Which resolutions being adopted nem. con. the meeting then adjourned

Rates of Freight from Fort Wayne to New York.

Ashes, Pork and Lard, $12 00 per ton.
Flour, 1 18 " barrel.
Other freights, by contract, from 1.15 per hundred to $14 per ton.
Wheat, [to Buffalo] 16 " bushel.

There has been a decline in the price of wheat the present week; owing to the recent news from England the eastern wheat and flour market is very dull and prices are exceedingly low. The price now quoted here is higher than is warranted if reference is had to present prices east, but there seems to be a disposition among the resident purchasers to save the producer from sacrifice, anticipating a better quotation in the eastern market before the close of navigaton.

Should prices advance so as to warrant it the wheat purchased here and along the canal would be shipped to the eastern market; otherwise it will be held over. Wheat is worth but 63 in Toledo and at the other ports along the Lake it is selling at corresponding rates. It is not likely that the usual quantity of wheat will be forwarded to the eastern market this season, as none can be purchased by agents at the present limit.

Our market in other respects is about as quoted last week, and the business of the week has been about the same. There has been within a few days past three extensive Hardware establishments opened here, and Hanna Hamilton & Co. are now opening a very extensive assortment of Dry Goods Groceries &c. in the splendid block of buildings newly erected on the corner of Columbia and Barr streets.

Toledo, Sept. 15.—Wheat 62; Corn 31 a 32.
Buffalo, Sept. 11.—Wheat 75 a 76. Flour 3,75.
N. York, Sept. 9.—Flour, Genesee, $4,38 a 44. Ohio and Michigan 4,38.

STATE OF TRADE.—The various departments of trade are quite active and our merchants are all busily engaged in getting in their fall stock. The quantity of merchandise arriving by the canal and passing westward continues to be large, and the wharves are almost entirely covered with goods in trans'tu. The aggregate destined for points on the upper lakes is so large that an extra steamer has been put in commission on this line and despatched to Chicago, with merchandise. The Great Western was so completely crammed that it was impracticable to carry forward any of the merchandize offered.

In the grain and flour market there is the usual activity and operations are large, but prices are fast receding to the lowest standard of last season, i. e. 62 cents; a quotation which ruled here during the whole of November.

The decline in the price of wheat in this market during the past week was 8 cents a bushel which if continued into the end of the month, brings that article to the standard which it assumed on the 1st Nov. a year ago; whether it will recede below that range this fall is yet to be determined. Some think it will, others deem the market able to sustain itself after reaching 62 1-2 cents at this point. —Buffalo Com. Adv.

Water power at Wabash Town

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED at the office of the Auditor of Public Accounts in Indianapolis, until Monday the 16th of October next, for leasing all the water power at the Lock in Wabash town, (Wabash and Erie Canal.) The Lock is 9 feet lift and is supposed to afford water enough to drive three run of stones, the most of the time; but two run only will be let with the understanding that the lessees is to pay for all the water that can be supplied, not to exceed three run. This is the only power the State will have to offer at this point. A sufficient portion of ground will be set apart for the use of the lessee, on which to erect his mill and the mill yard. Bidders will state a price per power, being understood to be water sufficient to propel a run of 4½ feet mill stones, when applied to an overshot wheel of 8 feet in diameter. At this Lock there can be at least 7½ foot over shot wheel, or a fifteen foot breast wheel to be determined by the Engineer.

The highest bidder will the lessee. If two bids are equal the choice will be determined by lot.

Proposals may be sent by mail, directed to the undersigned at Indianapolis.

External Remedy, or Liniment,

WHICH by its extraordinary powers, abstracts pains or soreness; thus pains, stiff sinews, white swelling, rheumatic pains or stiffness, stiffness of the joints, tumors, unnatural hardness, stiff neck, sore throat, croup, contractions of the muscles, scrofulous enlargements, tender feet, and every description of injury affecting the exterior of the human frame are cured or relieved by his never to-be sufficiently extolled remedy.

CERTIFICATE:

The following letter from Major Gen. Sanford as to the qualities of the External Remedies, speaks volumes:

New York, Feb. 9, 1842.

Dear Sir: Will you oblige me with another bottle of your excellent Liniment? It is certainly the best of the kind I have ever seen. It has cured entirely my son's knee, about which I was so uneasy, and I have found it productive of immediate relief in several cases of external injury in my family. A few evenings since, my youngest child was seized with a violent attack of croup which was entirely removed in 20 minutes, by rubbing her chest and throat freely with the External Remedy. I think they ought to manufacture this Liniment for general use, instead of confining the use of it, as you have done to your particular acquaintances.

PROSPECTUS OF THE

New Genesee Farmer,

AND GARDNER'S JOURNAL

Vol. IV. for 1843.

HENRY COLMAN, Editor for the first quarter; and M. B. BATEMAN, for the remainder of the year.

Published by C. F. Crosman and E. Shepard, Rochester. Sixteen pages monthly, enlarged and improved; price $1 00 per year, in advance.

THE character of the Gennessee Farmer, both old and new, has been well known, and its ability and usefulness universally applauded. Published in one of the best farming districts in the world, and in one of the finest and busiest cities of the growing west, the very home of active industry and intelligence, where information and mechanical talent of the highest order are concentrated, no pains will be spared to make it all that such a paper should be.

Under present arrangements, Mr. Colman is expected to continue in the editorial department for the first third of the year; and whenever he retires from its supervision, it will pass into able and competent hands, who will do justice to the paper and its subscribers. Mr. Colman contemplates an agricultural tour in Europe, and will be a regular correspondent of the paper through the year.

Mr. Batehan, as travelling agent and correspondent, designs to spend most of his time among the farmers, observing their condition, and operations, and his contributions will be interesting and practical. The numerous and able correspondents of the New Genesee Farmer, it is expected, will continue their valuable contributions. With these arrangements, the proprietors feel assured that the long tried friends of the Genesee Farmer will not desert the paper; but will use their influence to extend its circulation and usefulness. If each subscriber would make it an object to procure one other, he would render an essential public benefit. The correspondence being extended throughout the country, the paper will embrace the husbandry of the whole of New England, the Canadas, the Middle, the Southern and Western States; and it will communicate the fullest intelligence of the progress of agriculture in the old world. Being connected with an extensive Agricultural establishment, for seeds and implements, under the management of one of the Publishers, it will furnish information of all improvements in these departments. The proprietors will use their utmost endeavors to concentrate the best talent in their management: to have the mechanical execution and appearance greatly improved, and to render it entirely worthy of the patronage of practical and intelligent farmers.

Six Copies will be furnished for $5. Thirteen Copies for $10. On twenty copies and over, a discount of thirty per cent will be made. Payment always in advance. Bills of all specie paying banks taken at par.

Editors who will give this prospectus one or more insertions, will be entitled to receive one volume of the paper, without exchange.

Postmasters are permitted by law to remit money free of postage. The friends of agriculture are respectfully requested to assist in obtaining subscribers. Back numbers or volumes can be furnished.

Communications on business or for the paper, may be addressed to Crosman & [illegible] and [illegible] N. Y.

NEW VOLUME OF THE

LADIES' COMPANION,

AND

LITERARY EXPOSITOR,

PUBLISHED BY WILLIAM W. SNOWDEN, N. Y.

THE volumes of this old and popular magazine commence with the May and November numbers.

Editors:—Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, Mis Emma C. Embury, and William W. Snowden.

At the urgent solicitation of thousands of subscribers and readers, the 'LADIES' COMPANION, in future, will be printed in a larger type. The general complaint has been, that the size of the type upon which the work has been printed since the commencement, was too samall. To obviate such comblaints, a splendid font of new Burgoise type, which is a size larger than that formerly used, has been purchased from the foundry of George Bruce & Co., of this city—upon which the 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor' will hereafter be printed, commencing with the May number, 1843. To give greater strength to the literary character of the Magazine, the valuable aid Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney and Emma C Embury has been secured for the editorial department.

OCCASIONAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Sheriden Knowles, John Neal, Mark Leman, Professor F. B. Calvert, J. Blanche, R. Shelton Mackenzie, Late Granville Mellen, Douglass Jerrold, Late Sam'l Woodworth, W. T. Montcrieff F. W. Thomas, W. H. Ainsworth, &c. &c.

Among the number of contributors to the 'Ladies' Companion,' above enumerated, will be perceived the names of many, whose charming productions have given lusture to our national literature, and whose reputation is identified with the progression of this country to that position in the world of letters, to which they have been signally instrumental in advancing it: and among them, there will be found the names of ladies who have established the claim of woman to the possession of the loftiest intellect, in its more refined and delicate characteristics, and have reared an enduring monument to the virtues and elevation of their sex. The talents of their contributors, it will be perceived, are of the most varied character. By this, it is rendered certain that every taste will be gratified—that every branch of elegant literature will receive attention. Poetry, tales, sketches, essays; the instructive and the amusing; the grave and the gay—will be blended, to enhance the interest of the Magazine.

MAGNIFICENT AND COSTLY PLATES !!! are now in the hands of Jordan & Halpan, A. L. Dick, J. N. Gimbrede, and other eminent artists. Mezzotint engravings, will occasionally appear. Several of these splendid plates, are already finished, and will be published during the year. Scriptural plates will also form a portion of the superb embellishments preparing for the 'Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor.'—"Our fashion plates, which have been pronounced superior to those appearing in many other magazines, will be continued monthly or quarterly, as the change of the Parisian fashions may dictate. Engravings on wood—cap and lace paterns, will from time to time, add to the embellishments above promised. Lectures by the most celebrated professors, will be reported accurately—thus securing to the readers of the Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor, a correct journal of the most interesting lectures delivered in New York, during the year. Life like portraits of many of the distinguished statesmen of America will appear, at stated periods. The public should bear in mind that the three dollar magazines contain more reading, including the costly embellishments, than any of the five dollar magazines issued in America or Europe.

The Ladies' Companion and Literary Expositor, is published monthly in the city of N. York and thus established in popular favor, after a progress of many years —issued with unfailling promtness and regularity—adorned with a beauty of typographical execution which proudly challenges criticism, and with engravings, prepared, in every instance, exspressly for the work, after a careful selection of the subjects—enriched constantly with fashionable and popular music—superintended in all its departments, with the most scrupulous care for its excelence in every particular—and filled with articles from the pens of the most popular, renowned and talented writters of which our own country or England can boast, it is by no means an unwarrantable presumption thus to claim for the 'Ladies Componion, and Literary Exposiior,' the proud elevation of being a Standard National Magazine!

Looking with a jealous eye to the honor of American Literature, as well to emulumont, it is the endeavor of the proprietor of the Ladies Companion,' to be governed by principles of the broadest liberality; and to offer no pledge to the public which cannot be faithfully and fully redeemed. That every promise made in times past, has been scrupulously fulfilled, is confidently asserted, and for a full confirmation of this, every reader is appealed to; and this exactness, it is supposed, will be a sufficient guaranty for the future.
